

CFIUS Capabilities

When foreign investors and U.S. businesses need to navigate the national security requirements related to transactions and investments in the U.S., obtain the required approvals, and meet regulatory requirements, they need guidance from a team of lawyers that focuses on the niche yet evolving area of law involving the Committee on Foreign Investment in the United States (CFIUS).

This interagency committee plays a pivotal role in examining and scrutinizing transactions involving foreign investment in the United States—by businesses and persons—to ascertain if they pose a threat to U.S. national security.

At Loeb & Loeb, we provide comprehensive legal advice to both foreign investors and U.S. businesses regarding regulatory requirements, deal structuring and potential risks presented in connection with CFIUS. Our integrated team of experienced attorneys represents clients in connection with CFIUS throughout the due diligence, assessment, structuring, pre-filing consultation, filing, negotiation, mitigation, and post-deal responses and restructuring life cycle.

With lawyers on our team who have worked extensively with national security issues and agencies, we are a step ahead in scanning the evolving national security landscape and responding to new and emerging threats and vulnerabilities in the context of foreign investment.

Our cross-functional counsel teams recognize the client's unique business and strategic goals and tailor our approach to best serve each client. We bring a wealth of knowledge and insights to our investor clients, spanning a wide mix of industries, including technology, telecommunications, media, energy, infrastructure and more. Our rich industry experience matches our real-time understanding of current developments in what triggers a CFIUS review, the recently expanded scope of CFIUS' jurisdiction, and mandatory filing requirements.

With large and interdisciplinary teams of corporate, capital markets, technology, real estate, tax, private wealth, and privacy and data security lawyers, Loeb is ready to tackle any CFIUS-related issue and overcome the obstacles faced while investing in the U.S.
