

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19 20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
CENTRAL DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

SHAME ON YOU PRODUCTIONS, INC.,)	CASE NO. CV 14-03512 MMM (JCx) Plaintiff,)
)
)
vs.)	ORDER GRANTING DEFENDANTS’
)	MOTION TO DISMISS AND MOTION FOR
)	JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS AS TO
ELIZABETH BANKS, an individual; MAX)	PLAINTIFF’S FEDERAL COPYRIGHT
HANDELMAN, an individual; STEVEN)	CLAIM AND DECLINING TO EXERCISE
BRILL, an individual; BRILLCO, INC., a)	SUPPLEMENTAL JURISDICTION OVER
California corporation; FOCUS WORLD, A)	STATE LAW CLAIM; DENYING MOTION
DIVISION OF FOCUS FEATURES,)	TO CONTINUE CASE MANAGEMENT
LLC, a California corporation; SIDNEY)	DATES AS MOOT
KIMMEL ENTERTAINMENT, LLC, a) California limited liability company;)
FILMDISTRICT PICTURES, LLC, a) Delaware limited liability company;)
LAKESHORE ENTERTAINMENT)
CORP., a Delaware corporation;)
LAKESHORE ENTERTAINMENT) GROUP LLC, a California limited) liability company; BROKEN ROAD) PRODUCTIONS, INC., a California) corporation, as Doe 1; TODD GARNER,) an individual, as Doe 2; and Does 3 – 10,) inclusive,)
)
Defendants.)
)
)
)

On May 7, 2014, plaintiff Shame on You Productions, Inc. (“Shame on You”) commenced this action against defendants Elizabeth Banks, Max Handelman, Steven Brill, Brillco, Inc., Focus

1 World, Inc., Sidney Kimmel Entertainment, LLC, Filmdistrict Pictures, LLC, Lakeshore
2 Entertainment Corp., Lakeshore Entertainment Group LLC (collectively “defendants”), and various 3 fictitious parties.¹ The complaint alleged claims for copyright infringement and breach of implied-in-
4 fact contract premised on defendants’ purported copying of Shame on You’s motion picture screenplay.

5 On February 25, 2015, defendants filed a motion for judgment on the pleadings.² On April 27, 6 2015, after the court granted Shame on You’s ex parte application for an order granting it leave to 7 amend its complaint,³ Shame on You filed a first amended complaint alleging the same claims as the 8 original complaint but adding Broken Road Productions, Inc. (“Broken Road”) and Todd Garner as 9 defendants.⁴ The same day, it filed opposition to defendants’ motion for judgment on the pleadings.⁵
10 On May 11, 2015, all defendants, besides Garner and Broken Road, answered the first amended
11 complaint.⁶

12 On May 27, 2015, Garner and Broken Road filed a motion to dismiss the first amended
13 complaint, arguing there was no substantial similarity between the works as a matter of law.⁷ The same
14 day, Garner and Broken Road filed a motion to continue the case management dates.⁸ Shame on You

15
16 ¹Complaint, Docket No. 1 (May 7, 2014).

17 ²Motion for Judgment on the Pleadings (“MJOP”), Docket No. 110 (Feb. 25, 2015). See also 18 Reply in Support of Motion for Judgment on the Pleadings (“MJOP Reply”), Docket No. 139 (May 4, 2015).

19 ³Order Granting Ex Parte Application for Order Granting Leave to Amend, Docket No. 133
20 (April. 24, 2015).

21 ⁴First Amended Complaint (“FAC”), Docket No. 135 (Apr. 27, 2015). Because the parties
22 named in the original complaint have moved for judgment on the pleadings, while Garner and Broken 23 Road have moved to dismiss the first amended complaint, the court refers to the parties named in the original complaint as defendants, and to Garner and Broken Road individually.

24 ⁵Opposition to Motion for Judgement on the Pleadings (“MJOP Opposition”), Docket No. 134
(Apr. 27, 2015).

25 ⁶Answers to Amended Complaint, Docket Nos. 144 and 145 (May 11, 2015).

26 ⁷Motion to Dismiss (“MTD”), Docket No. 151 (May 27, 2015). See also Reply in Support of 27 Motion to Dismiss (“MTD Reply”), Docket No. 167 (July 13, 2015).

28 ⁸Motion to Continue Case Management Dates, Docket No. 153 (May 27, 2015).

1 opposes both motions.⁹

2
3 I. FACTUAL AND PROCEDURAL BACKGROUND

4 Shame on You alleges that it is the owner, by way of assignment from the author, Dan Rosen,
5 of an original motion picture screenplay titled Darci's Walk of Shame ("Darci's Walk of Shame"
6 or "Rosen's screenplay").¹⁰ It alleges that Rosen registered an early version of the screenplay with 7 the Writers Guild of America, East ("WGA") on or about November 17, 2006, and received
8 registration number 145107.¹¹ Shame on You alleges that the assignment from Rosen as well as the 9 relevant version of the screenplay have also been registered with the United States Copyright
10 Office.¹²

11 1. Allegations Concerning Access

12 The first amended complaint alleges that on or about July 31, 2007, Rosen emailed a draft
13 of the screenplay to an actor who was an acquaintance of Banks. Banks is a Hollywood actress and 14 producer.¹³ The acquaintance arranged a meeting among Rosen, Banks, and Banks' husband and 15 producing partner, Handelman, to discuss the screenplay.¹⁴ During the meeting, which purportedly
16 lasted several hours, Rosen allegedly discussed the screenplay, detailing the plot, story, characters, 17 sequence of events, and themes. He also purportedly gave Banks and Handelman a draft of the 18 screenplay.¹⁵ Shame on You asserts that Banks and Handelman expressed interest in the screenplay,
19

20
21 ⁹Opposition to Motion to Dismiss ("MTD Opposition"), Docket No. 165 (July 6, 2015);
22 Opposition to Motion to Continue Case Management Dates, Docket No. 166 (July 6, 2015).

23 ¹⁰FAC, ¶ 16.

24 ¹¹*Id.*

25 ¹²*Id.*

26 ¹³*Id.*, ¶ 17.

27 ¹⁴*Id.*, ¶ 18.

28 ¹⁵*Id.*

1 and indicated they would be in touch with Rosen regarding potential production of the film.¹⁶
2 Shame on You contends that, despite their apparent interest in the screenplay, Banks and Handelman
3 never contacted Rosen after the meeting, but retained the copy of the screenplay Rosen had given
4 them.¹⁷

5 Shame on You asserts that the screenplay was sent to various production companies and 6 talent agencies for consideration as well; United Talent Agency, which represented both Banks and 7 Brill, purportedly provided positive feedback.¹⁸ In 2009, Rosen met with Broken Road, to which 8 he had sent a copy of Darci's Walk of Shame.¹⁹ Broken Road – which was founded by Garner, who 9 remains its president – retained a copy of the screenplay but informed Shame on You that it was not 10 interested in producing the screenplay.²⁰

11 2. Rosen Learns of Defendants' Motion Picture Walk of Shame

12 Years later, in late 2013 or early 2014, Shame on You learned of a Deadline Hollywood
13 article, which stated that Banks was starring in a motion picture titled Walk of Shame.²¹ The article
14 reported that Steven Brill had written the script for the film, that Focus World was the distributor, 15 and that the film was scheduled for release on April 25, 2014.²² Shame on You asserts that the 16 Internet Movie Database (“IMDB”) webpage for Walk of Shame and the promotional movie poster
17 displayed thereon and elsewhere confirms that Banks stars in Walk of Shame; that Brill is the 18 director and writer; that Sidney Kimmel Entertainment, Film District, and Lakeshore Entertainment
19 produced the film; that Focus Features is the United States distributor; and that the film was released

21 ¹⁶*Id.*, ¶ 19.

22 ¹⁷*Id.*, ¶ 20.

23 ¹⁸*Id.*, ¶ 21.

24 ¹⁹*Id.*

25 ²⁰*Id.*, ¶¶ 12b, 21.

26 ²¹*Id.*, ¶ 22.

27 ²²*Id.*

1 theatrically, digitally and on pay per view in the United States on May 2, 2014.²³

2 3. Allegations of Substantial Similarity

3 Shame on You asserts that Walk of Shame borrows heavily from Rosen’s screenplay.²⁴
4 Specifically, it alleges that the plot, stories, characters, sequence of events, themes, and incidents
5 portrayed in the two works are fictional and, in many respects, “virtually identical.”²⁵ It contends
6 that these substantially similar, if not strikingly similar, elements, coupled with defendants’ direct 7 access to Rosen’s screenplay through Banks and Handelman, leave “little doubt that numerous
8 substantive original elements of [Walk of Shame] are compiled from the [Darci’s Walk of Shame]
9 [s]creenplay.”²⁶ Shame on You pleads claims for copyright infringement under 17 U.S.C. § 101, et.
10 seq., and breach of implied-in-fact contract.²⁷

11 4. Summary of the Works

12 Although neither of the screenplays is attached to the first amended complaint, as the court 13 explains infra, the screenplays and the Walk of Shame motion picture are incorporated by reference in 14 the complaint and can therefore properly be considered in deciding defendants’ motion for judgment
15 on the pleadings.²⁸ The court thus will provide a brief summary of both works before analyzing the 16 merits of defendants’ motion. There are two versions of the Darci’s Walk of Shame screenplay;
17 presumably only one was provided to defendants. The court cites primarily the version that is Exhibit
18 B to the Declaration of Devin Stone; where the versions differ in any significant respect, however, it

20 ²³*Id.*, ¶ 23.

21 ²⁴*Id.*, ¶ 24.

22 ²⁵*Id.*, ¶ 24.

23 ²⁶*Id.*

24 ²⁷See id., ¶¶ 26-36 (copyright infringement), ¶¶ 37-49 (breach of contract).

25
26 ²⁸Declaration of Devin Stone (“Stone Decl.”), Docket No. 111 (Feb. 25, 2015), Exh. A (Walk of 27 Shame Final Shooting Script (“WOS”)), Exh. B (Darci’s Walk of Shame Screenplay (“DWOS”)), Exh.
28 B (part 2). (Darci’s Walk of Shame Screenplay (“DWOS2”)). Defendants also submitted a DVD of the Walk of Shame motion picture, which likewise is incorporated by reference in the complaint for reasons stated infra. See id., Exh. C (Walk of Shame DVD (“WOS Movie”)).

1 notes the differences by citing the second screenplay, which is appended as part two of Exhibit B to 2 Stone’s declaration.

3 a. *Darci’s Walk of Shame

4 Darci’s Walk of Shame begins in Chicago’s Lincoln Park neighborhood, and focuses on lead
5 character Darci Palter’s “horribly ugly PUFFY PINK PASTRY ONE SHOULDER SOUTHERN BELLE STYLE
6 BRIDESMAID DRESS.”²⁹ Throughout the film, the fact that the dress – which Darci must wear as maid of 7 honor at her younger sister Deena’s wedding – is horribly ugly is used as a comedic device, since Darci
8 is forced to make the “walk of shame” wearing the dress. The story begins as Darci, a “32 [year old], 9 mostly natural blonde and pretty” woman, gets into a cab to pick up her boyfriend Brian at his apartment
10 in the Beldon-Stratford hotel so that they can catch a flight to her sister’s wedding in Maui.³⁰ Things
11 quickly take a turn for the worse when she walks in on Brian and their travel agent, Virginia, having sex.
12 Darci says she is going to Maui alone, and storms out of the apartment, but not before grabbing the first 13 class upgrade Virginia had secured for the flight.

14 The screenplay depicts Maui as a lover’s paradise. Almost all of the couples on the flight Darci
15 takes are on their honeymoon; the flight attendant asks Darci if she is traveling alone, which prompts
16 Darci to engage in crude rants directed at various honeymooning couples and a four-year-old girl
17 concerning her ex-boyfriends.³¹ Darci gets so inebriated she vomits in the lavatory. After arriving in 18 Maui, Darci meets Nathan, a “36 [year old], rugged and shaggy dog handsome” man who drives a jeep
19 taxicab.³² Nathan serves as the romantic lead for the remainder of the screenplay. After a long
20 conversation during the ride to the hotel, Nathan delivers Darci to the upscale Four Seasons Hotel where 21 Darci’s family – her mother, father, sister, and 101-year-old aunt Bertha – as well as the groom and his 22 family are introduced.³³ The next several scenes include a trip to the beach, and a Hawaiian luau

23 ²⁹DWOS at 1.

24 ³⁰*Id.* at 1-2.

25 ³¹*Id.* at 4-6.

26 ³²*Id.* at 6-8.

27 ³³*Id.* at 9-11.

1 rehearsal dinner where Darci is forced to wear the ugly pink dress and is introduced (or reintroduced)
2 to the man (or boy) with whom she goes home before embarking on her walk of shame the following
3 morning. The boy, Justin, is 25, “tall, well built, and manly” with an amazing smile.³⁴ In one version
4 of the screenplay, Darci’s mother introduces Justin – the son of a family friend – to Darci. Justin makes
5 it clear that he already knows Darci; Darci does not understand how this could be. It is later revealed
6 that she used to babysit Justin as a child. In the second version of the screenplay, Justin is a bus boy at 7 the hotel; Darci runs into him while on her way to the rehearsal dinner, and embarrasses herself by 8 trying to mop up water that she causes him to spill on himself.³⁵

9 The story continues the next day, as Deena, Darci, their mother, and another character, Lori, who 10 is either a friend or extended family member, visit at the Four Seasons spa.³⁶ The group of women have 11 hot cacao bath treatments and discuss their respective walks of shame. Although others tell their stories, 12 Darci says she has never had a walk of shame. Her mother says that Darci is a “good girl,” and “[n]ot
13 like these [other] hookers,” i.e., Lori and Deena.³⁷ The spa attendant enters and offers the women a tray
14 of homemade chocolates. Lori, Darci and her mother try the chocolates, but Deena explains she is 15 allergic to chocolate. The camera then zooms in on Deena covered in chocolate, with the spa attendant
16 looking horrified.³⁸ The story cuts to the wedding ceremony; Deena covers her face completely with 17 her wedding veil because she is completely covered in hives.³⁹

18 Darci’s misadventure begins at the wedding reception. Instead of having Deena toss the 19 bouquet, as is customary, the DJ asks Darci to come up and take the bouquet. This upsets her, and she 20
21

22 ³⁴*Id.* at 20.

23 ³⁵DWOS2 at 19-20.

24 ³⁶DWOS at 23.

25 ³⁷*Id.* at 26.

26 ³⁸*Id.* at 27-28.

27 ³⁹*Id.* at 28.

1 proceeds to get drunk on “giant pineapple drinks.”⁴⁰ She is about to cry or throw something when Justin
2 enters. In one version of the screenplay, he asks her to dance; in the second version, he brings her
3 another drink, which she knocks out of his hand and kisses him.⁴¹ In both versions, Darci and Justin 4 wake up the following morning at the Stowaway Hotel, described as a “cheesy” two star hotel.⁴² Also
5 in both versions, Justin leaves Darci there, but offers her his car.⁴³

6 Darci decides to take Justin’s car to the Four Seasons, so she leaves the room wearing the ugly
7 pink dress she had worn the night before. In both versions of the screenplay, Darci had left her purse
8 at the Four Seasons, so she has no phone, wallet, or identification.⁴⁴ Once she leaves the Stowaway
9 Hotel and sees Jason’s car, she realizes that she has left the car keys in the hotel room. She has an 10 extended discussion with the front desk clerk, explaining that she left her keys in the room; the clerk is 11 suspicious because she cannot remember either the room number or Justin’s last name.⁴⁵ Ultimately a 12 housekeeper lets her into the room. When she returns to the parking lot, however, the car has been 13 towed.⁴⁶ Because she needs to get back to the Four Seasons, Darci walks through a golf course, where 14 she encounters a group of Japanese golfers.⁴⁷ She steals their golf cart and a long, comedic chase
15 ensues. It ends with Darci stopping the golf cart in front of Bobby’s Tow Yard, where Justin’s car has 16 been towed.⁴⁸

17 Darci speaks with an employee, Bobby, who explains that the tow yard is closed on Sundays and 18

19 ⁴⁰*Id.* at 29.

20 ⁴¹*Id.* at 30; DWOS2 at 29-30.

21 ⁴²DWOS at 30.

22 ⁴³*Id.* at 32.

23 ⁴⁴*Id.*

24 ⁴⁵*Id.* at 34-37.

25 ⁴⁶*Id.* at 39-40.

26 ⁴⁷*Id.* at 41.

27 ⁴⁸*Id.* at 42-48.

1 that he cannot release Justin’s car to her even though he just brought it in.⁴⁹ Bobby asks whether the car
2 is registered in her name; she says it is not, and cannot even tell him Justin’s last name (because she does
3 not know it).⁵⁰ Bobby asks if she has money, and she admits she does not because her purse is at the 4 Four Seasons.⁵¹ Bobby feels bad for her, but explains that, although she has the keys, he cannot release
5 the car to someone who does not even know the last name of the owner. He offers to drive her back to 6 the Four Seasons, but only if she will go to church with him. Darci agrees.⁵² When they arrive, there
7 is a small wedding ceremony in progress at the church. Near the end of the ceremony, Darci bursts into 8 tears and runs out of the church. Bobby follows her, and she explains that she has had trouble finding 9 the right relationship.⁵³ She explains that no one she dates ever thinks she is good enough. Bobby asks
10 whether she loved any of the men, and she responds: “What the hell does that have to do with 11 anything?”⁵⁴ Bobby retorts, “Only everything,” and goes back inside the church, leaving Darci outside.

12 Darci thinks she has caught a break when moments later, a pickup truck that has several dozen
13 live chickens in the back pulls up. She rides in the back of the truck surrounded by chickens until the 14 truck driver loses control, and Darci is thrown out of the truck into a ditch.⁵⁵ She blacks out and dreams
15 she is marrying Brian; she is quickly awakened by Nathan – the cab driver who took her to the Four 16 Seasons. He asks if she is all right. He explains that she has been bitten by a poisonous snake, and that 17 he is not only a taxicab driver but a volunteer fire fighter. Based on his emergency training, he sucks
18 the poison out of her toe.⁵⁶ A chicken that is sitting on Darci’s lap then sneezes. One of several animal

20 ⁴⁹*Id.* at 48.

21 ⁵⁰*Id.* at 49.

22 ⁵¹*Id.*

23 ⁵²*Id.* at 50-51.

24 ⁵³*Id.* at 52-53.

25 ⁵⁴*Id.* at 54.

26 ⁵⁵*Id.* at 55-56.

27 ⁵⁶*Id.* at 57-58.

1 control workers that were trying to collect the chickens yells quarantine, and Darci is transported to a
2 hospital unit with Center for Disease Control and Federal Emergency Management Agency logos on 3 the walls.⁵⁷ Nathan remains with Darci. She explains that she needs to return to the Four Seasons, and 4 Nathan takes her in an emergency helicopter he flies from time to time.⁵⁸ Darci and Nathan discuss the 5 fact that Nathan moved to Hawaii from Philadelphia; Nathan shares his lunch with Darci while they take 6 in the beauty of the island. Nathan is moments away from dropping Darci off at the Four Seasons when 7 the two have an awkward conversation about whether they will see one another again. Just as Nathan 8 is about to land the helicopter, an emergency call comes in, and he is forced to abort the landing and 9 head straight to a volcano to rescue a group of tourists; he and Darci soon discover the group includes
10 her parents.⁵⁹ Darci is ashamed to see her parents, and forces Nathan to drop her off at Mendes Ranch.⁶⁰
11 As they say goodbye, Darci comments on the fact that Nathan is wearing a wedding ring; Nathan tries
12 to explain, but does not have enough time, and must leave before explaining the truth.⁶¹

13 At the ranch, Darci encounters Brian and Virginia. After an extended dialogue as to why he is 14 there, Brian tells Darci that she deserved better than him, and that he always knew she was going to 15 dump him.⁶² He offers to help her get back to her hotel. They ride on horseback together, with Virginia
16 in the lead, to the coast where Brian's Hummer SUV is located.⁶³ Once they get to the coast, Brian
17 cannot find his keys. Darci is therefore forced to ride with what is described as a dozen native
18 Hawaiians in an outrigger canoe.⁶⁴ After arriving at the Four Seasons, the Hawaiians tell her the ride
19

20 ⁵⁷*Id.* at 59-60.

21 ⁵⁸*Id.* at 65-67.

22 ⁵⁹*Id.* at 67-72.

23 ⁶⁰*Id.* at 72-73.

24 ⁶¹*Id.* at 74.

25 ⁶²*Id.* at 78-79.

26 ⁶³*Id.* at 80-83.

27 ⁶⁴*Id.* at 87.

1 costs $125. Fortunately, Nathan is there waiting for Darci and covers the cost.⁶⁵ Darci darts upstairs
2 to change, avoiding anyone that might know her, while Nathan searches for the brunch Darci is 3 supposed to attend.⁶⁶ Once upstairs, Darci decides that she will not change her dress, but will go to 4 brunch in the bright pink dress with mud and sand all over it. She goes to the farewell brunch; it appears
5 she is revealing her walk of shame when Nathan enters.⁶⁷ He explains that they had a romantic evening
6 together under the stars, making her walk of shame seem like nothing more than a perfect evening.⁶⁸
7 At that point, Justin enters and explains what really happened, i.e., Darci went with him, but they did
8 not have sex because she fell asleep.⁶⁹ Visibly upset, Darci races out of the hotel and hails a taxi to take 9 her to the airport to return to Chicago.

10 Nathan catches her and explains that his wife died, and that he stopped wearing the ring for the 11 first time that very day because he had feelings for her.⁷⁰ She responds that there is no chance for them,
12 because Nathan lives in paradise and she lives in Chicago. He asks her to stay, and she says she cannot 13 because she knows that, like all others she has had, their relationship will not last.⁷¹ Nathan pleads with 14 her to no avail. Darci returns home via airplane and hails a taxi at Chicago O'Hare International 15 Airport; it is pouring rain and there is thunder.⁷² After a brief conversation with the cab driver makes 16 her realize that she has made a huge mistake, Darci asks him to turn around and take her back to the 17 airport.⁷³ She gets out of the cab at O'Hare and is shocked to see Nathan emerge from the automated
18

19 ⁶⁵*Id.* at 88.

20 ⁶⁶*Id.* at 89.

21 ⁶⁷*Id.* at 95.

22 ⁶⁸*Id.* at 95-96.

23 ⁶⁹*Id.* at 97-98.

24 ⁷⁰*Id.* at 99-100.

25 ⁷¹*Id.* at 102-03.

26 ⁷²*Id.* at 104.

27 ⁷³*Id.* at 104-05.
28

1 double doors. Darci exclaims that Nathan has found her. Although he says at first that he merely found
2 her sunglasses, he ultimately agrees that he followed her to Chicago. The two “KISS – finally – and it’s
3 a KISS worth waiting for. RAIN falls around them. A SHUTTLE BUS drives by SPLASHING AND SOAKING
4 THEM.”⁷⁴ Nathan asks if the weather is always like this, and Darci replies: “No – sometimes it’s bad.”
5 Nathan says he will just have to get used to it, and Darci agrees that “[he] will.” The movie ends with 6 the couple kissing.⁷⁵

7 b. *Walk of Shame

8 Walk of Shame begins just prior to the start of a KZLA newscast with anchor Meghan Miles, the 9 lead character. Meghan makes clear in the opening scene that she is a career woman and that she wants
10 to become lead anchor. When her boss, Dan Karlin, tells her to be herself, she says she wants to be 11 whatever the station wants her to be.⁷⁶ Meghan interviews with the executives who are deciding who 12 will be selected as the new lead anchor, which seems to go well. She then goes on air, giving a very 13 conservative, very rehearsed news presentation; during the broadcast, we are introduced to Chopper
14 Steve, who flies the KZLA traffic helicopter.⁷⁷ He discusses “Carpocalypse” – the fact that Interstate 15 10 in Los Angeles will be completely shut down over the weekend. Even though Meghan has not yet 16 been selected as lead anchor, friends Rose and Denise call and say they are going out to celebrate after 17 the broadcast.

18 Rose and Denise arrive at Meghan’s home in suburban Brentwood and immediately notice that 19 much of her furniture and household items are missing.⁷⁸ Rose asks where Meghan’s fiancé, Kyle, is, 20 and Meghan says he has gone to the supermarket. Realizing that they were not fooled, Meghan then 21

22
23 ⁷⁴*Id.* at 107.

24 ⁷⁵*Id.*

25 ⁷⁶WOS at 1-2.

26 ⁷⁷*Id.* at 5-8.

27 ⁷⁸*Id.* at 11.

1 admits that Kyle broke up with her and took everything with him.⁷⁹ She says she did not tell them
2 because she assumed that getting the lead anchor job would make it better; at that point, she burst into 3 tears and tells her friends she did not get the job.⁸⁰ Her friends urge her to go with them to a nightclub.
4 Meghan finally gives agrees, but says she will only go if she can wear sweat pants. Her friends respond
5 that she must wear Denise’s “slutty [yellow] dress.”⁸¹

6 At the nightclub, which she has apparently not visited before, Meghan does not realize that the 7 three shots of alcohol Denise ordered were meant for all of them, and drinks all three quickly.⁸² She 8 becomes quite drunk and attempts to find a bathroom. She accidentally walks out an emergency exit,
9 however, and is stuck on a fire escape on the second level of the building. To make matters worse, her
10 high heel gets wedged in the grating of the fire escape and she cannot get free.⁸³ Just as she is about to 11 panic, Gordon, who is a bartender at the club, comes to help her.⁸⁴ Once he gets her off the fire escape, 12 Gordon says that Meghan is much too drunk to drive, and that he will drive her home.⁸⁵ When she 13 apologizes for keeping him from work, Gordon explains that he is more than a bartender, as he writes
14 books as well.⁸⁶ Gordon asks Meghan where she lives, to which she responds: “Where do YOU live?”
15 – indicating that she wanted to go to his apartment.⁸⁷ She wakes up later that night and realizes what 16 has happened. She finds a condom, but cannot find her clothes and other personal items. She calls her 17 cell phone from Gordon’s phone, hoping it will ring so she can find it. Instead, it goes to voicemail.

19 ⁷⁹*Id.*

20 ⁸⁰*Id.* at 11-12.

21 ⁸¹*Id.* at 13.

22 ⁸²*Id.* at 14-15.

23 ⁸³*Id.* at 17.

24 ⁸⁴*Id.* at 17-18.

25 ⁸⁵*Id.* at 19.

26 ⁸⁶*Id.* at 20.

27 ⁸⁷*Id.*

1 She checks her voicemail and she has a message from her boss saying that she is back in the running
2 for the lead anchor position because the other candidate has too many skeletons in her closet. He tells 3 Meghan to get some rest, because network executives were going to come to her broadcast the following
4 day.⁸⁸ Meghan grabs her keys, but not her purse or phone, as she remembers these are in her car, and 5 heads outside to find the car. Much to her dismay, the car has been towed.⁸⁹

6 Meghan sees a cab driver who, startled, brandishes a gun and tells her he will shoot her. He says
7 he is off duty, but she ultimately convinces him to take her to the tow lot for “double or triple” the usual
8 fare.⁹⁰ When the driver announces that they have reached their destination, she looks out the window
9 and sees a sign that says “TATOO – Gentleman’s Club.”⁹¹ The driver, who has a thick accent,
10 misunderstood where she wanted to go, as he refers to the strip club as “tow to.”⁹² Like many other 11 characters in the movie, the driver thought Meghan was a stripper or prostitute. When she explains she 12 cannot pay him unless he takes to the towing company where her car is located, he demands that she 13 either give him lap dances or he will take her to jail.⁹³ The driver takes his gun out a second time, 14 threatening Meghan; she is able to escape, however, and runs toward abandoned warehouses in 15 downtown Los Angeles. Two cars pull up; the men in both mistake Meghan for a prostitute.⁹⁴ Two 16 police officers also notice Meghan and warn her that she cannot solicit on the street. They do not offer
17 to help her, despite the fact that she tries to ask them to do so.⁹⁵

18
19
20 ⁸⁸*Id.* at 22-23.

21 ⁸⁹*Id.* at 23-24.

22 ⁹⁰*Id.*

23 ⁹¹*Id.* at 25.

24 ⁹²*Id.* at 27.

25 ⁹³*Id.* at 27-28.

26 ⁹⁴*Id.* at 29-30.

27 ⁹⁵*Id.* at 32.

1 Thereafter, Meghan befriends some crack cocaine dealers – Scrilla, Hulk, and Pookie.⁹⁶ At first,
2 they believe Meghan is a police officer; Pookie then recognizes her as being on air at KZLA.⁹⁷ Meghan
3 explains that she needs to get out of their “ghetto crack house” so she can get a big promotion. The men
4 try to help her by giving her one of their disposable phones.⁹⁸ The only person whose number she can
5 remember is Kyle’s. He proves to be completely useless, and is in fact in bed with another woman.⁹⁹
6 Pookie tells Meghan how to get to the tow lot, and she heads out, but not before Pookie also gives her
7 some crack to sell for money so she can catch a cab or bus.¹⁰⁰

8 As the sun comes up, Meghan walks down a street with a number of stores. A store owner
9 notices her; when she asks him for help, he accepts. He wants to take her picture, looking disheveled
10 and wearing the yellow dress from the night before, however, which horrifies Meghan, so she runs
11 away.¹⁰¹ She next finds a person she correctly identifies as a crack dealer in a park and tries to sell him
12 Pookie’s crack; this causes a huge alteration once the dealer finds out she got the crack from his rival
13 Pookie. Meghan throws the cocaine at a trash can and runs.¹⁰² She jumps on a bus driven by an elderly
14 lady; the rest of the bus patrons believe she is a prostitute. Because she has no money, the bus driver
15 forces her to leave the bus, observing that she is not a very good prostitute if she does not have $1.50
16 for bus fare, and that she might want to consider a new career.¹⁰³

17 Meanwhile, at Gordon’s apartment, he finds Meghan’s cell phone buried under clothing. He sees 18 a text from Meghan, that she sent from one of the crack dealer’s phones, saying that she is lost. Gordon
19

20 ⁹⁶*Id.* at 34.

21 ⁹⁷*Id.* at 38.

22 ⁹⁸*Id.* at 39-40.

23 ⁹⁹*Id.* at 41-44.

24 ¹⁰⁰*Id.* at 45.

25 ¹⁰¹*Id.* at 49.

26 ¹⁰²*Id.* at 51.

27 ¹⁰³*Id.* at 52-54.

1 redials, but reaches one of the crack dealers who explains Meghan has already left his area.¹⁰⁴ Rose also
2 calls Meghan's cell phone; Gordon answers. Rose interrogates him, thinking he must have killed
3 Meghan. Rose tells Gordon to stay at his apartment as she is on her way there. Rose calls Denise and
4 asks Denise to come with her to Gordon's apartment.¹⁰⁵ Meghan tries to get help from a Jewish man
5 at a synagogue; this backfires, however, as she is accused of being a bigot or engaging in a hate crime
6 because she is asking for $1.50.¹⁰⁶

7 At the KZLA studio, Dan has begun to work on the script for Meghan's news broadcast; the 8 story concerns the crazy night of the "Hooker Hudlum"; Dan does not know, however, that Meghan is 9 the central figure in the story.¹⁰⁷

10 Meghan finally finds a pay phone and calls 1-800-GOT-NEWS, the KZLA tip line. A young intern
11 answers, tells Meghan she has called the tip line, and says he cannot connect her to Dan Karlin. When 12 she explains that she is Meghan Miles, the intern does not believe her and hangs up.¹⁰⁸ Annoyed, 13 Meghan slams down the phone. In the distance, she hears sirens; the police are searching for the Hooker 14 Hoodlum.

15 The scene shifts to Gordon's apartment; Rose and Denise arrive, and decide that Gordon is 16 trustworthy. Together, the three try to determine how they will find Meghan. Denise remembers that 17 Meghan has a tracking device on her keys; Gordon says she must have taken those with her.¹⁰⁹ They 18 get into Rose's car and call the tracking device company. At the same time, Meghan steals a 12-year-
19 old boy's bicycle, and the police officers who mistook her for a prostitute begin to chase her.¹¹⁰ Meghan
20

21 ¹⁰⁴*Id.* at 54.

22 ¹⁰⁵*Id.* at 55-56.

23 ¹⁰⁶*Id.* at 58.

24 ¹⁰⁷*Id.* at 57.

25 ¹⁰⁸*Id.* at 63-64.

26 ¹⁰⁹*Id.* at 69.

27 ¹¹⁰*Id.* at 71-76.
28

1 ends up at a spa in Koreatown, where she runs into the cab driver with whom she earlier had an
2 altercation.¹¹¹ Meghan flees, just before the police arrive due to the commotion caused by her encounter
3 with the cab driver.¹¹² Denise, Rose, and Gordon arrive minutes after Meghan has fled the spa. Meghan
4 runs along Interstate 10, which remains closed due to Carpocalypse.¹¹³ She does not realize that the 5 freeway will open in a matter of minutes, and decides to run across the road, miraculously beating
6 oncoming traffic. Her whereabouts and progress are chronicled by Chopper Steve and KZLA as part
7 of the Hooker Hoodlum story.¹¹⁴

8 After she successfully makes it across the interstate, Meghan finds the towing company and sees 9 her car. The employee on duty will not release her car, however, because Meghan does not have her
10 identification or money with which to pay the impound fees.¹¹⁵ She tries to drive the car out of the lot
11 when the gate opens, but the front desk employee pressed a button that deploys spike strips that flatten
12 her tires. Meghan's luck finally changes, as Gordon, Rose and Denise – who have determined her
13 location from the device attached to her keys – arrive and whisk her off to KZLA.¹¹⁶ They encounter
14 terrible traffic because Interstate 10 has just reopened; undaunted, Meghan uses Gordon's phone to call
15 Dan Karlin, who ends Chopper Steve to take Meghan and Gordon to the studio.¹¹⁷

16 After Meghan arrives at the studio, and the broadcast goes live, she realizes that the script she 17 is reading is her story, and is completely false.¹¹⁸ She gives up her desire to be what others want her to 18 be, and tells viewers that she is the Hooker Hoodlum. She explains that she used to care about what 19

20 ¹¹¹*Id.* at 80-81.

21 ¹¹²*Id.* at 82.

22 ¹¹³*Id.* at 82-83.

23 ¹¹⁴*Id.* at 84-86.

24 ¹¹⁵*Id.* at 87.

25 ¹¹⁶*Id.* at 91-92.

26 ¹¹⁷*Id.* at 94.

27 ¹¹⁸*Id.* at 96.

1 people thought of her, but that she now just wants to be herself, because anything else is exhausting.¹¹⁹
2 She tells the viewers that she likes Gordon – the man she stayed with the night before her walk of 3 shame– and she thinks he likes her as well.¹²⁰ Network executives offer Meghan the opportunity to host
4 an new “investigative series” to be called “The Girl in the Yellow Dress.” Meghan says, without
5 enthusiasm, that she will get back to them.¹²¹ As the film ends, Gordon and Meghan leave the KZLA
6 studio together.¹²²

8 II. DISCUSSION

9 A. Whether Defendants’ Motion for Judgment on the Pleadings Must Be Denied as 10 Moot in Light of the Filing of the First Amended Complaint

11 Shame on You contends that defendants’ motion for judgment on the pleadings must be denied
12 because the court granted it leave to amend the complaint, and it filed an amended complaint on April 13 17, 2015. Shame on You asserts that the amended complaint moots defendants’ motion, as it is directed 14 to the original complaint and answer.¹²³ Defendants counter that the motion should be construed as 15 being directed to the first amended complaint, since that complaint is substantially identical to the 16 original complaint, and merely substitutes actual defendants for two fictitious parties.¹²⁴ Defendants also 17 note that the amendment does not allege any new facts concerning the works at issue in this lawsuit.

18 The court agrees that Shame on You’s filing of an amended complaint does not alter the nature
19 of defendants’ motion for judgment on the pleadings. The works at issue remain the same. Thus, the 20 basis on which defendants seek judgment on the pleadings remains the same – i.e., defendants contend

22 ¹¹⁹*Id.* at 97-98.

23 ¹²⁰*Id.*

24 ¹²¹*Id.* at 100.

25 ¹²²*Id.* at 101.

26 ¹²³Opposition at 1.

27 ¹²⁴Reply at 3.

1 the two screenplays are not substantially similar as a matter of law. It would waste both the court's and 2 the parties' resources to deny the motion and require defendants to file an identical motion directed to 3 the first amended complaint. Moreover, Shame on You has not identified any prejudice it would suffer
4 if the court elects to construe the motion as directed to the amended complaint. Under these 5 circumstances, courts can construe motions for judgment on the pleadings as directed to later-filed
6 complaints. See, e.g., McQuiston v. City of Los Angeles, 564 Fed. Appx 303, 305-06 (9th Cir. Mar. 18, 7 2014) (Unpub. Disp.) ("McQuiston asserts the district court erred in considering the City Defendants'
8 motion for judgment on the pleadings. McQuiston argues the district court should have dismissed that 9 pleading, which was directed at the second amended complaint, as moot and directed the City
10 Defendants to file a new motion directed at the third amended complaint. This argument is frivolous.
11 As regards to the City Defendants, McQuiston's claims, factual allegations, and legal arguments did not 12 change in any material way from the second to the third amended complaints. Furthermore, McQuiston 13 filed an extensive memorandum of points and authorities responsive to the City Defendants' motion for 14 judgment on the pleadings. Finally, McQuiston has not identified any prejudice flowing to him from 15 the district court's decision to treat the City Defendants' motion as applying to the third amended 16 complaint and considering that motion, along with his response, in resolving this case," citing 17 FED.R.CIV.PROC. 1 (stating the rules of civil procedure "should be construed and administered to secure 18 the just, speedy, and inexpensive determination of every action and proceeding")); Mohs v. Trans World
19 Corp., 993 F.2d 1550 (7th Cir. 1993) (affirming the district court's decision to "treat defendants' motion 20 for summary judgment as a motion directed to both the original and amended complaint"); Graham v.
21 City of Oklahoma City, Okl., 859 F.2d 142, 144-45 (10th Cir. 1988) ("Mr. Graham first argues that the 22 judgment was improperly entered because defendants failed to renew their motion for summary
23 judgment after he filed an amended complaint naming additional defendants. Mr. Graham correctly 24 contends that an amended complaint supersedes the original complaint unless it is specifically 25 incorporated therein. The amended complaint in this case, however, is practically identical to the 26 original complaint except for the inclusion of additionally named defendants. . . . The motion for 27 summary judgment directed towards the original complaint was fully briefed by both parties and 28

1 provided Mr. Graham with adequate notice that defendants claimed he did not have a constitutionally
2 protected property interest or a § 1985 claim. We conclude the district court had the power to enter the 3 summary judgment on these two claims because Mr. Graham had adequate notice and sufficient 4 opportunity to meet defendants' arguments contained in the initial motion for summary judgment");
5 Banks v. ACS Educ. Corp., No. CV 10-1886 AJB CAB, 2011 WL 3794923, *1 (S.D. Cal. Aug. 25, 6 2011) ("Since the SAC did not materially alter the claims from the First Amended Complaint, but 7 merely added Defendants previously dismissed by the Court for want of prosecution, the Court hereby 8 construes the following motions to dismiss, and the motion for judgment on the pleadings, as motions
9 on the SAC in an effort to avoid the needless refiling of the seven motions"); Corpuz v. Yaneza, No. CV
10 04-00752 DAE LEK, 2005 WL 2083174, *1 (D. Haw. July 15, 2005) ("The amended Complaint, 11 however, does not add anything substantively to Plaintiffs' claims and thus, the Court construes 12 Defendants' Motion to Dismiss as relating to Plaintiffs' Amended Complaint"); Rogers v. Quik Check 13 Fin., Inc., No. CV 03-1120 JE, 2004 WL 948339, *1 (D. Or. Mar. 16, 2004) ("Defendant's motion to 14 dismiss asserts that plaintiff's first amended complaint fails to state a claim. However, at the hearing
15 to consider the motion, I granted plaintiff's oral motion for leave to file a second amended complaint.
16 Plaintiff has subsequently filed a second amended complaint, and I construe defendant's motion to 17 dismiss as challenging the sufficiency of this latter complaint").

18 This is especially true given that Shame on You's opposition – although filed before the first 19 amended complaint became operative – referenced allegations in the first amended complaint. Stated 20 differently, although it asserted that defendants' motion for judgment on the pleadings should be denied
21 as moot, Shame on You dedicated twenty-four of the twenty-five pages of its opposition to arguing that 22 the motion should be denied on the merits. Shame on You also made arguments concerning Garner's
23 and Broken Road's direct access to the screenplay. Accordingly, the court construes defendants' motion 24 as directed to the first amended complaint, and will consider the allegations of access and substantial 25 similarity included in that complaint to determine if it adequately states a claim against any defendant.
26
27
28

1 B. Garner’s and Broken Road’s Notice of Joinder in the Motion for Judgment on the
2 Pleadings and Defendants’ Joinder in the Motion to Dismiss

3 Simultaneously with filing of their motion to dismiss on May 27, 2015, Garner and Broken Road
4 joined the other defendants’ motion for judgment on the pleadings.¹²⁵ On May 29, 2015, the defendants
5 moving for judgment on the pleadings joined Garner’s and Broken Road’s motions to dismiss and 6 continue the trial date.¹²⁶ Shame on You objects to the other defendants’ joinder in both motions filed
7 by Garner and Broken Road. The court agrees with Shame on You that the remaining defendants cannot 8 join Garner’s and Broken Road’s motion to dismiss. See FED.R.CIV.PROC. 12(b) (“A motion asserting[, 9 inter alia, failure to state a claim,] must be made before pleading if a responsive pleading is allowed”);
10 Rector v. Scott, No. LA CV 13-03116 VBF, 2014 WL 580158, *1 (C.D. Cal. Feb. 11, 2014) (“Rule
11 12(b) goes on to say that ‘[a] motion asserting any of these defenses must be made before pleading if 12 a responsive pleading is allowed.’ In other words, a motion to dismiss for insufficient service/process
13 must be filed before an answer”); Jensen v. Douglas, No. CV 07-8119 PCT SMM, 2008 WL
14 4174892, *1 (D. Ariz. Sept. 5, 2008) (“A motion to dismiss under Rule 12(b)(6) ‘must be made before
15 pleading if a responsive pleading is allowed.’ An answer to a complaint is a responsive pleading.
16 Defendant filed an answer to the complaint in this matter on April 28, 2007. Relief under Rule 12(b)(6) 17 is therefore foreclosed”).

18 Although Shame on You does not object to Garner’s and Broken Road’s notice of joinder in 19 defendants’ motion for judgment on the pleadings, the court concludes that they cannot join the motion
20 for judgment on the pleadings. This is because a Rule 12(c) motion is only proper “[a]fter the pleadings 21 are closed but within such time as not to delay the trial.” FED.R.CIV.PROC. 12(c). The “pleadings are 22 closed for the purposes of Rule 12(c) once a complaint and answer have been filed, assuming, as is the 23 case here, that no counterclaim or cross-claim is made.” Doe v. United States, 419 F.3d 1058, 1061 (9th 24 Cir. 2005). Because Garner and Broken Road have not filed an answer, the pleadings are not closed as 25 to them; hence, they cannot join the remaining defendants’ motion for judgment on the pleadings. In

26
27 ¹²⁵MTD at 1.

28 ¹²⁶Notice of Joinder by Lakeshore et al., Docket No. 156 (May 29, 2015); Notice of Joinder by Handelman and Banks, Docket No. 157 (May 29, 2015).

1 fact, so long as Garner and Broken Road remain parties, the pleadings are not closed and the court
2 cannot grant defendants' motion for judgment on the pleadings. Id. ("pleadings are closed for the
3 purposes of Rule 12(c) once a complaint and answer have been filed, assuming, as is the case here, that
4 no counterclaim or cross-claim is made."). For that reason, the court first determines whether Garner's
5 and Broken Road's motion to dismiss can be granted with prejudice, such that they are no longer parties
6 and the pleadings are closed so that the court can properly decide the remaining defendants's motion 7 for judgment on the pleadings.

8 C. Legal Standard Governing Motions to Dismiss Under Rule 12(b)(6)

9 A Rule 12(b)(6) motion tests the legal sufficiency of the claims asserted in the complaint.
10 A Rule 12(b)(6) dismissal is proper only where there is either a "lack of a cognizable legal theory," 11 or "the absence of sufficient facts alleged under a cognizable legal theory." Balistreri v. Pacifica
12 Police Dept., 901 F.2d 696, 699 (9th Cir. 1988). The court must accept all factual allegations
13 pleaded in the complaint as true, and construe them and draw all reasonable inferences from them
14 in favor of the nonmoving party. Cahill v. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co., 80 F.3d 336, 337-38 (9th Cir.
15 1996); Mier v. Owens, 57 F.3d 747, 750 (9th Cir. 1995).

16 The court need not, however, accept as true unreasonable inferences or conclusory legal 17 allegations cast in the form of factual allegations. See Bell Atlantic Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 18 555 (2007) ("While a complaint attacked by a Rule 12(b)(6) motion to dismiss does not need 19 detailed factual allegations, a plaintiff's obligation to provide the 'grounds' of his 'entitle[ment] to 20 relief' requires more than labels and conclusions, and a formulaic recitation of the elements of a 21 cause of action will not do"). Thus, a plaintiff's complaint must "contain sufficient factual matter, 22 accepted as true, to 'state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face.' . . . A claim has facial 23 plausibility when the plaintiff pleads factual content that allows the court to draw the reasonable
24 inference that the defendant is liable for the misconduct alleged." Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 25 678 (2009); see also Twombly, 550 U.S. at 555 ("Factual allegations must be enough to raise a right
26 to relief above the speculative level on the assumption that all the allegations in the complaint are 27 true (even if doubtful in fact)" (citations omitted)); Moss v. United States Secret Service, 572 F.3d
28 962, 969 (9th Cir. 2009) ("[F]or a complaint to survive a motion to dismiss, the non-conclusory

1 ‘factual content,’ and reasonable inferences from that content, must be plausibly suggestive of a
2 claim entitling the plaintiff to relief,” citing Iqbal and Twombly).

3 D. Legal Standard Governing Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings

4 Under Rule 12(c) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, a party may move for judgment on 5 the pleadings at any time after the pleadings are closed, so long as the motion is filed in sufficient time
6 that it will not delay trial. FED.R.CIV.PROC. 12(c). “For the purposes of the motion, the allegations of 7 the non-moving party must be accepted as true, while the allegations of the moving party which have 8 been denied are assumed to be false.” Hal Roach Studios, Inc. v. Richard Feiner and Co., Inc., 896 F.2d 9 1542, 1550 (9th Cir.1990). “Judgment on the pleadings is proper when the moving party clearly 10 establishes on the face of the pleadings that no material issue of fact remains to be resolved and that it 11 is entitled to judgment as a matter of law.” Id.

12 In deciding a motion for judgment on the pleadings, the court generally is limited to the 13 pleadings and may not consider extrinsic evidence. See FED.R.CIV.PROC. 12(c) (stating that a Rule
14 12(c) motion for judgment on the pleadings should be converted into a Rule 56 motion for summary
15 judgment if matters outside the pleadings are considered by the court). “It is well-settled that materials
16 properly attached as exhibits to the complaint and matters that are subject to judicial notice may . . . be 17 considered in evaluating a motion for judgment on the pleadings.” Thomas v. Fin. Recovery Servs., No.
18 CV 12-01339 PSG (OPx), 2013 WL 387968, *2 (C.D. Cal. Jan. 31, 2013) (citing Amfac Mortg. Corp.
19 v. Ariz. Mall of Tempe, Inc., 583 F.2d 426, 429-30 & n. 2 (9th Cir. 1978); Buraye v. Equifax, 625
20 F.Supp.2d 894, 896-97 (C.D. Cal. 2008)).

21 In addition, a district court can consider documents “whose contents are alleged in a complaint 22 and whose authenticity no party questions, but which are not physically attached to the pleading.”
23 Branch v. Tunnell, 14 F.3d 449, 454 (9th Cir.1994), overruled on other grounds in Galbraith v. County
24 of Santa Clara, 307 F.3d 1119 (9th Cir. 2002). The court can also consider documents on which the 25 complaint “necessarily relies.” See Parrino v. FHP, Inc., 146 F.3d 699, 706 (9th Cir.), cert. denied, 525
26 U.S. 1001 (1998), superceded by statute on other grounds as recognized in Abrego Abrego v. The Dow
27 Chemical Co., 443 F.3d 676 (9th Cir. 2006). If the complaint references a lawsuit that is the subject of 28 an insurance coverage dispute, for example, the court can consider the pleadings in the underlying

1 action. USF Ins. Co. v. Clarendon America Ins. Co., 452 F.Supp.2d 972, 977 n. 1 (C.D. Cal. 2006).

2 E. Whether the Court Must Convert Defendants’ Motion for Judgment on the 3 Pleadings and/or Garner’s and Broken Road’s Motion to Dismiss into Motions for 4 Summary Judgment

5 Shame on You contends that the court must convert both the motion to dismiss and the motion 6 for judgment on the pleadings and the motion to dismiss into motions for summary judgment because 7 defendants and Garner and Broken Road present an “extensive comparison of the two works,” and 8 support the motions with the screenplays at issue and the motion picture Walk of Shame. At the hearing,
9 Shame on You reiterated its belief that the court had converted both motions into motions for summary
10 judgment by considering the screenplays, and thus that it would err in refusing to consider the expert
11 opinion it proffered with its opposition. Shame on You is mistaken. As noted, Rule 12(d) states that 12 motions to dismiss or for judgment on the pleadings shall be treated as motions for summary judgment
13 if “matters outside the pleadings are presented to and not excluded by the court.” FED.R.CIV.PROC.
14 12(d). “However, the [c]ourt need not turn [a] motion [to dismiss or] for judgment on the pleadings into 15 one for summary judgment. When a party submits an indisputably authentic copy of a document, and 16 the document is referred to in the complaint, the [c]ourt does not have to convert the motion into a 17 summary judgment motion.” Rose v. Chase Manhattan Bank USA, 396 F.Supp.2d 1116, 1119 (C.D.
18 Cal. 2005), aff’d, 513 F.3d 1032 (9th Cir. 2008). The first amended complaint refers extensively both 19 to the Darci’s Walk of Shame screenplay and the allegedly infringing Walk of Shame screenplay.
20 Because these works are referenced in – although not attached to – the amended complaint, they are 21 incorporated by reference in it, and can be considered by the court in assessing substantial similarity.
22 See Branch, 14 F.3d at 454; Adjmi v. DLT Entm’t Ltd., __ F.Supp.3d __, 2015 WL 1499575, *2 (S.D.N.Y.
23 Mar. 31, 2015) (“[T]he Court relies on the underlying source material: nine seasons of Three’s Company
24 and the screenplay (and certain reviews) of 3C, each incorporated by reference in the pleadings”); Lake
25 v. Columbia Broad. Sys., Inc., 140 F.Supp. 707, 708 (S.D. Cal. 1956) (finding “that copies of plaintiff’s 26 book and of the script of defendants’ allegedly infringing radio program [were] . . . incorporated by 27 reference into the complaint”). The motion picture Walk of Shame, based on the allegedly infringing
28 screenplay, is also referenced repeatedly in the complaint. Thus, it too is incorporated by reference, and

1 can be considered without converting the motion into one for summary judgment. See Candelaria v.
2 Spurlock, No. CV 08-1830-BMC-RER, 2008 WL 2640471, *1 (E.D.N.Y. July 3, 2008) (“In addition,
3 because the complaint relies heavily on the movie, the Court may consider the movie in evaluating the 4 complaint under Rule 12(b)(6),” citing Brass v. American Film Techns., Inc., 987 F.2d 142, 150 (2d Cir.
5 1993) (holding that courts can consider documents incorporated by reference in the pleadings in 6 deciding a motion to dismiss)).

7 Thus, because defendants and Garner and Broken Road do not cite any matters outside the 8 pleadings, the court need not convert the motion to dismiss or motion for judgment on the pleadings into 9 a motion for summary judgment.¹²⁷

10 F. Shame on You’s Objections to Defendants’ Late-Filed Reply and Evidentiary
11 Objections

12 Shame on You objects to defendants’ late-filed reply and evidentiary objections, asserting that 13 the court should disregard the reply and objections because they were filed at 10:55 p.m. and 11:00 p.m.
14 on May 4, 2015.¹²⁸ It argues that the court should strike the pleadings because defendants have 15 repeatedly filed late documents and should not be permitted to continue to do so. It is true that the court
16 requires parties to file all briefs by the close of business (5:00 p.m.) on the day they are due. Notably 17 absent from Shame on You’s objection, however, is any assertion that it was prejudiced by defendants’
18 noncompliance. Shame on You asserts that defendants have repeatedly made late filings; this is the first

19
20 ¹²⁷Shame on You also contends, somewhat paradoxically, that defendants’ motion is an untimely
21 motion to dismiss under Rule 12(b)(6). This is so, it asserts, because defendants ask that the court
22 “dismiss” the complaint, and cite a number of cases deciding Rule 12(b)(6) motions. Defendants’ 23 motion is captioned a motion for judgment on the pleadings; that they occasionally ask the court to 24 “dismiss” the complaint with prejudice, as opposed to enter judgment on the pleadings, is merely a 25 matter of semantics; if the court were to accept Shame on You’s argument, it would exult form over 26 substance. In re Jan Weilert RV, Inc., 315 F.3d 1192, 1200 (9th Cir.) amended, 326 F.3d 1028 (9th Cir.
27 2003) (“The law does not inflexibly demand form over substance”). Furthermore, “[a] motion for 28 judgment on the pleadings is ‘functionally identical’ to a . . . Rule . . . 12(b)(6) motion to dismiss.”
Segal v. Rogue Pictures, No. CV 10-5650 DSF (AJWx), 2011 WL 11512768, *1 (C.D. Cal. Aug. 19, 2011) (quoting Dworkin v. Hustler Magazine, Inc., 867 F.2d 1188, 1192 (9th Cir. 1989)). Thus, reliance on Rule 12(b)(6) cases is to be expected. The court therefore declines to treat the motion as an untimely motion to dismiss.

¹²⁸Objections to Late-Filed Reply and Objections, Docket No. 141 (May 5, 2015).

1 time it has brought the issue to the court’s attention, however, and the court lacks sufficient evidence
2 to determine whether its assertion that the late filings are part of a pattern is accurate. Absent evidence
3 of prejudice, the fact that defendants’ reply, to which no response is permitted, and its evidentiary
4 objections, to which Shame on You did not respond, were filed approximately six hours late is simply 5 insufficient to warrant striking either filing. The court therefore declines to do so, and will consider both
6 the reply and the objections. See Robinson v. Adams, No. CV 09-6721 RSWL RC, 2010 WL 3834957,
7 *2 (C.D. Cal. July 27, 2010) (“The Court declines petitioner’s request to strike respondent’s reply . . .
8 because respondent filed his reply two days late”).¹²⁹

9 G. Defendants’, Garner’s, and Broken Road’s Objections to Shame on You’s Evidence
10 in Opposition to Their Motions

11 Shame on You proffered an expert report authored by Professor Cynthia McCreery to its 12 opposition to defendants’ motion for judgment on the pleadings, and Garner’s and Broken Road’s
13 motion to dismiss. In it, McCreery opines that there are numerous similarities between the two 14 screenplays, requiring that the issue of substantial similarity be decided by a jury.¹³⁰ Defendants object
15 to consideration of the report on several grounds. They assert primarily that the report is evidence that 16 is neither attached to nor referenced in the first amended complaint, and cannot be considered in ruling
17 on their motion for judgment on the pleadings. Defendants are correct that the court “cannot consider 18 such evidence in [deciding] a motion for judgment on the pleadings as it would require the [c]ourt to 19 go beyond the scope of the pleadings.” XL Specialty Ins. Co. v. Perry, No. CV 11-02078 RGK (JCGx), 20 2012 WL 6800780, *4 (C.D. Cal. Jan. 26, 2012). As noted, judgment on the pleadings is “improper 21 when the district court goes beyond the pleadings,” and relies on extrinsic evidence “to resolve an issue;
22 such a proceeding must properly be treated as a motion for summary judgment.” Hal Roach Studios,

24 ¹²⁹Even were the court to strike the evidentiary objections, it would decline to consider the expert
25 report of Professor Cynthia McCreery because it is extrinsic to the complaint and not properly taken into 26 account in deciding a motion for judgment on the pleadings. The court notes as well that defendants 27 raise no new arguments in reply; whether or not the court considers the reply, the issues before it are the 28 same.

¹³⁰Declaration of Charles M. Coate, Docket No. 134 (Apr. 27, 2015), Exh. C (Expert Report of Professor Cynthia McCreery); MTD Opposition, Declaration of Charles M. Coates, Exh. C (same).

1 896 F.2d at 1550 (citing FED.R.CIV.PROC. 12(c)). The same is true with respect to a motion to dismiss.
2 See Lee v. City of Los Angeles, 250 F.3d 668, 688-689 (9th Cir. 2001) (“As a general rule, ‘a district
3 court may not consider any material beyond the pleadings in ruling on a Rule 12(b)(6) motion’”);
4 Santiago v. Bloise, 741 F.Supp.2d 357, 361 (D. Mass. 2010) (refusing to consider an exhibit attached 5 to opposition to a motion for judgment on the pleadings that was not referenced in the complaint).

6 Professor McCreery’s expert report is extrinsic evidence on which Shame on You cannot rely 7 at the pleadings stage. Accordingly, the court sustains both objections, and will not consider the expert
8 report in ruling on the motions.¹³¹ Rather, it limits its consideration to the pleadings, the screenplays,
9 and the Walk of Shame motion picture. Shame on You also proffers an expert report authored by David
10 Hayer in opposition to the motion to dismiss. The court sustains Garner’s and Broken Road’s objections 11 to consideration of Hayer’s expert report for the same reasons it sustained their objections to 12 McCreery’s report.¹³²

13 At the hearing, Shame on You disputed this conclusion, asserting that the court could not 14 conduct the extrinsic test used to assess copyright infringement without expert opinion to guide it.
15 There is no authority for this proposition. To the contrary, courts routinely disregard expert testimony 16 in conducting the extrinsic test, even where it is otherwise properly before the court (and in this case it 17 is not). Where, as here, the court conducts an extensive analysis of the alleged similarities between 18 works, and considers every alleged similarity identified by the plaintiff, it is not required to consider 19 expert testimony concerning substantial similarity. See Rice v. Fox Broadcasting Co., 330 F.3d 1170, 20 1180 (9th Cir. 2003) (“The district court engaged in an extensive analysis of the alleged similarities in 21 expressive elements between The Mystery Magician and the Specials. In deciding to disregard
22 Kauffman’s testimony, the district court could have simply deemed it unhelpful due to its abstract
23 nature. Indeed, in the course of its written opinion, the district court analyzed and rejected the legal 24

25 ¹³¹Defendants, Garner, and Broken Road also object that Professor McCreery is not qualified as 26 an expert and that she employed an improper methodology. Since the court has declined to consider the 27 report because it is extrinsic to the pleadings, it need not reach these additional objections.

28 ¹³²Garner and Broken Road also object to Hayer’s qualifications. As with McCreery, the court declines to address these objections.

1 significance of many of the points set forth by Kauffman. The district court concluded that Rice’s
2 claims of substantial similarity were either foreclosed by the limiting doctrines of merger and scenes
3 a faire, or too abstract to constitute copyright infringement. Because Kauffman’s testimony merely 4 restated many of these same generic similarities in expressive content, we are satisfied that the district
5 court was well within its discretion in disregarding Kauffman’s testimony”); Segal v. Rogue Pictures,
6 No. CV 10-5650 DSF (AJWx), 2011 WL 11512768, *5 (C.D. Cal. Aug. 19, 2011) (granting judgment
7 on the pleadings on the basis that there was no substantial similarity between two works and noting that 8 “[t]he Court need not decide whether Plaintiff’s expert” report is relevant because this order considers 9 every alleged similarity identified by Plaintiff in his opposition,” citing Rice, 330 F.3d at 1180), aff’d,
10 544 Fed. Appx. 769 (9th Cir. Nov. 13, 2013) (Unpub. Disp.).

11 Garner and Broken Road also object to the Darci’s Walk of Shame screenplay that is attached
12 as Exhibit B to Coates’ declaration. Although the screenplay is incorporated by reference in the first 13 amended complaint, plaintiffs rely not on the substance of the screenplay, but on a stamp on the 14 document attached to Coates’ declaration suggesting that it was received by Banks on July 31, 2007.
15 The existence of this stamp is not pled in the first amended complaint or otherwise incorporated by 16 reference therein, and cannot be considered in deciding the motion to dismiss. More fundamentally, as 17 detailed below, the court finds that direct access was adequately alleged in the first amended complaint, 18 such that consideration of the “received” stamp is unnecessary to find that Banks had access to the 19 script. Garner’s and Broken Road’s objection is therefore sustained.

20 H. Legal Standard Governing Copyright Infringement Claims

21 “Copyright is a federal law protection provided to the authors of ‘original works of authorship.’” 22 Vernor v. Autodesk, Inc., 621 F.3d 1102, 1106 (9th Cir. 2010) (quoting 17 U.S.C. §§ 101-103). “To 23 establish [copyright] infringement, two elements must be proven: (1) ownership of a valid copyright, 24 and (2) copying of constituent elements of the work that are original.” Feist Publications, Inc. v. Rural 25 Tel. Serv. Co., 499 U.S. 340, 361 (1991). There is no dispute that Shame on You has a valid copyright
26 in the Darci’s Walk of Shame screenplay. Thus, the only issue is whether on their face, the pleadings 27 demonstrate that no material issue of fact remains concerning copying.

28 “Copying may be established by showing that the infringer had access to plaintiff’s copyrighted

1 work and that the works at issue are substantially similar in their protected elements.” Cavalier v.
2 Random House, Inc., 297 F.3d 815, 822 (9th Cir. 2002). For purposes of this motion, defendants do not
3 contest access. Thus, the court must determine whether no material issues of fact remain concerning 4 substantial similarity, such that defendants are entitled to judgment as a matter of law. See id. (“For 5 purposes of their summary judgment motion, Random House and CTW did not contest ownership or 6 access. The sole issue before us is whether any of Random House’s or CTW’s works were substantially
7 similar to the Cavaliers’ submissions”).

8 “Substantial similarity is inextricably linked to the issue of access. In what is known as the 9 ‘inverse ratio rule,’ [the Ninth Circuit] ‘require[s] a lower standard of proof of substantial similarity
10 when a high degree of access is shown.’” Three Boys Music Corp. v. Bolton, 212 F.3d 477, 485 (9th
11 Cir. 2000); Shaw v. Lindheim, 919 F.2d 1353, 1361–62 (9th Cir. 1990).¹³³

12 Courts “employ a two-part analysis in this circuit – an extrinsic test and an intrinsic test – to 13 determine whether two works are substantially similar. The ‘extrinsic test’ is an objective comparison 14 of specific expressive elements.” Cavalier, 297 F.3d at 822. See also Funky Films, Inc. v. Time Warner
15 Entertainment Co., 462 F.3d 1072, 1077 (9th Cir. 2006) (stating that a copyright plaintiff must satisfy 16 both an extrinsic test, focusing on objective elements, and an intrinsic test, focusing on an ordinary person’s 17 subjective impressions). “[T]he [extrinsic] test focuses on articulable similarities between the plot, 18 themes, dialogue, mood, setting, pace, characters, and sequence of events in two works.” Kouf v. Walt
19 Disney Pictures & Television, 16 F.3d 1042, 1045 (9th Cir. 1994) (internal quotation marks and citation 20 omitted). “Familiar stock scenes and themes that are staples of literature are not protected.” Cavalier, 21 297 F.3d at 823. Likewise, “[s]cenes-à-faire, or situations and incidents that flow necessarily or 22 naturally from a basic plot premise, cannot sustain a finding of infringement.” Id. “Therefore, when 23 applying the extrinsic test, a court must filter out and disregard the non-protectible elements in making
24 its substantial similarity determination.” Id. at 822-23; Shaw, 919 F.2d at 1361 (applying the extrinsic 25 test to determine “whether there is substantial similarity between the protected expression of ideas in

26
27 ¹³³“Furthermore, in the absence of any proof of access, a copyright plaintiff can still make out 28 a case of infringement by showing that the [screenplays] were ‘strikingly similar.’” Three Boys Music
Corp., 212 F.3d at 485.

1 two literary works”); Berkic v. Crichton, 761 F.2d 1289, 1293-94 (9th Cir. 1985) (rejecting 2 consideration of general ideas as well as scènes-à-faire in determining substantial similarity under the 3 extrinsic test).

4 “The ‘intrinsic test’ is a subjective comparison that focuses on ‘whether the ordinary, reasonable 5 audience’ would find the works substantially similar in the ‘total concept and feel of the works.’”
6 Cavalier, 297 F.3d at 822 (citing Kouf, 16 F.3d at 1045 (internal quotation marks and citation omitted)).
7 “Since the intrinsic test for expression is uniquely suited for determination by the trier of fact,” Sid &
8 Marty Krofft Television Prods., Inc. v. McDonald's Corp., 562 F.2d 1157, 1166 (9th Cir. 1977),
9 appellate courts “will not second-guess the jury’s application of [it].” Three Boys Music Corp., 212 F.3d
10 at 485. Thus, “[i]f plaintiff satisfies the extrinsic test, the intrinsic test’s subjective inquiry must be left 11 to the jury and [any dispositive motion] must be denied.” Smith v. Jackson, 84 F.3d 1213, 1218 (9th Cir.
12 1996); Kouf, 16 F.3d at 1045 (“A plaintiff avoids summary judgment by satisfying the extrinsic test
13 which makes similarity of the works a triable issue of fact,” citing Brown Bag Software v. Symantec 14 Corp., 960 F.2d 1465, 1477 (9th Cir. 1992)); see also Funky Films, 462 F.3d at 1077 (“A ‘plaintiff who 15 cannot satisfy the extrinsic test necessarily loses on summary judgment, because a jury may not find 16 substantial similarity without evidence on both the extrinsic and intrinsic tests,” quoting Kouf, 16 F.3d 17 at 1045).

18 I. Whether the Court Should Grant Garner’s and Broken Road’s Motion to Dismiss

19 Garner and Broken Road argue that a comparison of the plot, themes, dialogue, mood, setting, 20 pace, characters, and sequence of events in Darci’s Walk of Shame and Walk of Shame demonstrates that 21 there is no substantial similarity in protected expression.¹³⁴ Shame on You disputes this. It argues that 22 it has alleged Banks, Handelman, Garner, and Broken Road had direct access to the script, and that,
23 under the inverse ratio rule, the degree of similarity that must be shown is lower than it would be were 24 there no allegations of direct access.¹³⁵ Shame on You also contends that there are many substantial
25

26
27 ¹³⁴MTD at 4.

28 ¹³⁵MTD Opposition at 10-11.

1 similarities between the two screenplays that render judgment as a matter of law inappropriate.¹³⁶ The 2 court addresses each contention in turn.

3 1. Whether Shame on You Alleges That Certain Defendants Had Direct Access
4 to Rosen’s Screenplay

5 Shame on You contends that it has alleged facts that plausibly suggest Banks, Handelman,
6 Garner, and Broken Road had direct access to Rosen’s screenplay. The court agrees. “In the context
7 of copyright, it is well established that there must be evidence of a reasonable possibility of access.
8 Access must be more than a bare possibility and may not be inferred through speculation or conjecture.”
9 Gaste v. Kaiserman, 863 F.2d 1061, 1066 (2d Cir. 1988). To satisfy its burden of pleading access,
10 plaintiff must allege facts “from which a reasonable finder of fact could infer that the defendant had a 11 reasonable opportunity to copy his or her work.” Grubb v. KMS Patriots, L.P., 88 F.3d 1, 3 (1st Cir.
12 1996). “Direct access is shown if there is proof that defendant actually viewed, read, or heard the work
13 at issue.” Briggs v. Blomkamp, __ F.Supp.3d __, 2014 WL 4961396, *7 (N.D. Cal. Oct. 3, 2014) (citing
14 Lucky Break Wishbone Corp. v. Sears, Roebuck & Co., 528 F.Supp.2d 1106, 1122 (W.D. Wash. 2007), 15 aff’d, 373 Fed. Appx. 752 (9th Cir. Apr. 7, 2010) (Unpub. Disp.)); accord 3 William F. Patry, PATRY
16 ON COPYRIGHT, § 9:24, at 9-55 (2007).

17 As noted, Shame on You alleges that Rosen emailed a draft of the screenplay to an actor and 18 acquaintance of Banks on July 31, 2007. The acquaintance arranged a meeting among Rosen, Banks, 19 and Handelman to discuss the screenplay.¹³⁷ The meeting purportedly lasted several hours, during which 20 Rosen allegedly discussed the screenplay and detailed its plot, story, characters, sequence of events, and 21 themes. As relevant here, Rosen also allegedly gave Banks and Handelman a draft of the screenplay.¹³⁸
22 These allegations plead that Banks and Handelman received both an electronic and a print version of 23 Rosen’s screenplay and give rise to a plausible inference that Banks and Handelman “actually viewed, 24 read, or heard the work at issue.” See Briggs, 2014 WL 4961396 at *7. The allegations are thus

25
26 ¹³⁶*Id.* at 13.

27 ¹³⁷FAC, ¶ 18.

28 ¹³⁸*Id.*

1 sufficient to plead that Banks and Handelman had direct access to the work.

2 The first amended complaint also alleges that sometime in 2009, Rosen met with an unidentified
3 individual from Broken Road after he sent it a copy of Darci's Walk of Shame for consideration.¹³⁹ The 4 complaint does not allege that Garner was the Broken Road representative who met with Rosen. It does
5 plead that Garner founded Broken Road and remains its president, however; it also alleges that Broken
6 Road retained a copy of the screenplay even after advising Shame on You that it was not interested in 7 producing the screenplay.¹⁴⁰ These allegations are unquestionably sufficient to allege that Broken Road 8 had direct access to the copyrighted work because they imply he “actually viewed, read, or heard the 9 work at issue.” See id. While the question respecting Garner is closer, given that he is allegedly Broken 10 Road’s founder and CEO, and that the complaint alleges he “received financial benefit for his 11 noncredited involvement” in Walk of Shame, a reasonable juror could conclude that Garner, through 12 Broken Road, had direct access to Rosen’s screenplay. See id.

13 Because Shame on You plausibly alleges direct access by Garner and Broken Road, it need
14 satisfy “a lower standard of proof to show substantial similarity” to survive Garner’s and Broken Road’s
15 motion to dismiss. See Shaw, 919 F.2d at 1361 (quoting Krofft, 562 F.2d at 1172); see also id. (citing 16 2 M. Nimmer, NIMMER ON COPYRIGHT § 143.4, at 634 (1976) (“[S]ince a very high degree of similarity
17 is required in order to dispense with proof of access, it must logically follow that where proof of access 18 is offered, the required degree of similarity may be somewhat less than would be necessary in the 19 absence of such proof”).

20 Nonetheless, “the court must . . . consider substantial similarity.” Universal Dyeing & Printing, 21 Inc. v. U.S. Textile Printing, Inc., No. CV 09-09132 DDP (VBKx), 2011 WL 4084557, *3 (C.D. Cal.
22 Sept. 13, 2011) (citing Idema v. Dreamworks, Inc., 162 F.Supp.2d 1129, 1175-78 (C.D. Cal. 2001)
23 (considering “substantial similarity” in a copyright action where defendants did not refute allegations 24 of direct access and copying)). This is because neither access nor copying alone suffices to prove 25 copyright infringement; the works must also be substantially similar. See Universal Dyeing & Printing,

26
27 ¹³⁹*Id.*

28 ¹⁴⁰*Id.*, ¶¶ 12b, 21.

1 Inc., 2011 WL 5865567 at *2 (“Accordingly, even assuming that Universal had shown direct evidence
2 of copying and access, the analysis would be the same: Defendants would still be entitled to summary
3 judgment because the patterns at issue are not substantially similar”); Berkla v. Corel Corp., 66
4 F.Supp.2d 1129, 1140-41 (E.D. Cal. 1999) (explaining that even if plaintiff “did have evidence of direct 5 copying . . . he still remains unexcused from demonstrating the requisite similarity”); Decorative Aides
6 Corp. v. Staple Sewing Aides Corp., 497 F.Supp. 154, 157 (S.D.N.Y. 1980) (“Copying cannot be found 7 on proof of access alone when the resulting works are not substantially similar,” citing Ideal Toy Corp.
8 v. Fab-Lu, Ltd., 360 F.2d 1021 (2d Cir. 1966)).

9 2. Whether Walk of Shame and Darci’s Walk of Shame Are Not Substantially
10 Similar as a Matter of Law

11 Garner and Broken Road assert the two screenplays are not substantially similar as a matter of 12 law.¹⁴¹ As noted, “the [extrinsic] test focuses on articulable similarities between the plot, themes, 13 dialogue, mood, setting, pace, characters, and sequence of events in two works.” Kouf, 16 F.3d at 1045 14 (internal quotation marks and citation omitted). “Familiar stock scenes and themes that are staples of 15 literature are not protected.” Cavalier, 297 F.3d at 823. Nor are “[s]cenes-à-faire, or situations and 16 incidents that flow necessarily or naturally from a basic plot premise.” Id. The court must thus examine 17 these aspects of the screenplays to determine if it can identify articulable similarities between them.

18 a. Plot

19 Garner and Broken Road contend the plots of the two films are substantially different. They 20 assert that the only possible commonality between the works is that the main character in each has 21 difficulty walking home after a night of partying. They maintain that the concept of a walk of shame
22 is not copyrightable, because the extrinsic test looks to the “actual concrete elements” of the plot, not 23 generalized plot ideas.¹⁴² The court agrees that a “walk of shame” is not itself protectable; Shame on 24 You, in fact, does not argue to the contrary. See Berkic, 761 F.2d at 1293 (“General plot ideas are not 25

26 ¹⁴¹MTD at 4.

27 ¹⁴²MTD at 5. See also MJOP at 17 (a walk of shame “is a common pop-culture reference and 28 generic plot theme[, which] . . . is unprotectable”).

1 protected by copyright law”). Instead, it cites a list of perceived similarities in the two plots. The Ninth
2 Circuit is “particularly cautious [in finding substantial similarity] where[a] list [of perceived
3 similarities] emphasizes random similarities scattered throughout the works.” Litchfield v. Spielberg,
4 736 F.2d 1352, 1356 (9th Cir. 1984). Shame on You contends that both works feature a female lead
5 character¹⁴³ living in a big city, who breaks up with her boyfriend, gets drunk, spends a “one-nighter”
6 with a man she just met who works as a busboy/bartender, wakes up disoriented the next morning at his 7 place, puts on the bright dress she was wearing the night before, and embarks on a walk of shame
8 through the city to get to an important event. It asserts that in each work, the lead character makes it
9 to her important event, but nonetheless reveals the embarrassing truth of her misadventures the night
10 before, and ultimately finds meaningful romance with a man who helped her through her troubles.

11 As an initial matter, many of the purported similarities Shame on You identifies flow directly 12 from the basic premise of a walk of shame. See Funky Films, 462 F.3d at 1081 (“[G]eneral plot ideas 13 are not protected by copyright law; they remain forever the common property of artistic mankind,” 14 quoting Berkic, 761 F.2d at 1293); Cavalier, 297 F.3d at 824 (“basic plot ideas, such as this one, are not 15 protected by copyright law”); Shaw, 919 F.2d at 1356 (“Copyright law protects an author’s expression;
16 facts and ideas within a work are not protected”). A film whose central premise is a walk of shame must 17 employ devices to extend the lead character’s return to her abode; thus here, both Darci and Meghan
18 lose their cellular telephones and wallets. Absent these plot devices, each character could simply have 19 called a friend or paid for a taxi. Getting drunk, spending a “one-nighter” with someone you just met, 20 waking up disoriented the next morning at the individual’s house or apartment, and putting on the 21 clothes worn the night before are also plot devices that are necessary to a walk of shame. Thus, these 22 scenes-à-faire are not protectable. See Williams v. Crichton, 84 F.3d 581, 589 (2d Cir. 1996) (holding 23 that “electrified fences, automated tours, dinosaur nurseries, and uniformed workers” were “classic 24 scenes-a-faire that flow[ed] from the uncopyrightable concept of a dinosaur zoo”).

25 Shame on You also contends that in each work, the main character makes it to an important event
26

27 ¹⁴³Shame on You makes much of the fact that both Darci and Meghan are “good girls.” This 28 contention is discussed in detail in the court’s comparison of characters, infra.

1 but nonetheless reveals her misadventures the night before. It is true that both lead characters make it
2 to an important event. The events, however, are entirely different. In Darci's Walk of Shame, the 3 important event is a farewell brunch at the Four Seasons Maui following the wedding of Darci's sister.
4 In Walk of Shame, the event is a morning news broadcast Meghan must anchor to secure her "dream
5 job." Moreover, it is not the case that in both works, the lead character voluntarily reveals her
6 misadventures the night before. When Meghan finally arrives at KZLA, she is asked to inform viewers
7 of a breaking story about a person – the "Hooker Hoodlum," who, of course, is her. Meghan could have 8 avoided revealing the truth about her walk of shame, but decided to reveal that she was the hooker
9 hoodlum. She states:

10 "Yes. I woke up in a strange bed and had to endure the longest, weirdest 'Walk of 11 Shame,' but guess what? I am not a HOOKER. And I am not ashamed! I don't care what 12 people think anymore. It's exhausting!"¹⁴⁴

13 By contrast, although Darci elects to wear her pink bridesmaid dress covered in dirt and sand
14 as a result of her walk of shame, Darci does not reveal the details of the walk of shame. Unlike Meghan,
15 she is content to allow her love interest, Nathan, to tell those at the brunch that they had a romantic 16 evening together the night before.¹⁴⁵ This is foiled when Justin – the college freshman with whom she 17 actually spent the night – enters and explains what actually happened, i.e., that Darci got drunk and went 18 home with him.¹⁴⁶ Shame on You's assertion that both lead characters voluntarily reveal their walk of 19 shame is thus incorrect.

20 Nonetheless, there are similarities between the plots. Both lead characters have recently 21 separated from ex-boyfriends. In Darci's Walk of Shame, however, Darci catches Brian in the act of 22 cheating and walks out on him. In Walk of Shame, by contrast, we learn that Kyle, Meghan's fiancé,
23 has left her for another woman. Similarly, in both works, the lead character meets a man who helps her
24 make it to her final destination. The type of help provided, however, differs significantly. In Darci's

25
26 ¹⁴⁴WOS at 98.

27 ¹⁴⁵DWOS at 94-97.

28 ¹⁴⁶*Id.* at 97-99.

1 Walk of Shame, Nathan rescues Darci from what appears to be a life-threatening situation after Darci
2 is bitten by a poisonous snake while walking on the side of the highway in Maui.¹⁴⁷ Nathan, who is not
3 only a taxicab driver but also a volunteer fireman, quickly treats her, sucking the venom from Darci’s
4 toe. Nathan is also a helicopter pilot, and offers to fly her back to the hotel where she is staying. After 5 a lengthy tour of Maui from the air Nathan reluctantly drops Darci at a ranch near her hotel because he 6 has to save Darci’s parents and other visitors from an active volcano, and Darci is embarrassed to see 7 her parents.

8 In Walk of Shame, by contrast, Gordon, a bartender, appears early in the movie – Meghan goes
9 to his downtown Los Angeles apartment after getting drunk at the nightclub where he works. Gordon
10 does not interact with Meghan again until the end of the movie when he finds her at a tow lot trying to 11 steal her car. He then attempts to drive her – with Denise and Rose – to KZLA; because of Carpocalypse, 12 however, they run into bumper-to-bumper traffic. Chopper Steve comes to the rescue and gives them
13 a ride to KZLA. Unlike the extended helicopter scene in Darci’s Walk of Shame, none of the helicopter
14 ride is depicted in Walk of Shame.

15 Thus, the plots share certain general similarities: in both works, the lead characters are helped 16 to their final destination by “nice guy” male characters. In both, the lead character is flown to her final 17 destination by helicopter, and both involve recent ex-boyfriends who appear. “Despite these similarities, 18 the two narratives are strikingly different,” and the court cannot conclude that the plots have protectable
19 similarities. See Benay v. Warner Bros. Entertainment, Inc., 607 F.3d 620, 625 (9th Cir. 2010). Benay
20 is particularly instructive. There, comparing the plot of a screenplay and film based on the journey of 21 an American war veteran to Japan in the 1870’s, the court explained:

22 “In both the Screenplay and the Film, an American war veteran travels to Japan in the 23 1870s to train the Imperial Army in modern Western warfare in order to combat a 24 samurai uprising. Not surprisingly, the stories share similar elements as a result of their 25 shared premise. In both, the protagonist starts in America and travels to Japan where he 26 meets the Emperor, who is struggling to modernize Japan. Both protagonists introduce

27
28 ¹⁴⁷*Id.* at 57.

1 modern warfare to the Imperial Army, using contemporary Western weaponry and 2 tactics. Both works feature a Japanese foil in the form of the leader of the samurai
3 rebellion. And in both works the protagonist suffers a personal crisis and is transformed
4 as a result of his interaction with the samurai.” Id. at 625.

5 Even with these notable similarities, the Ninth Circuit concluded that the works were not substantially
6 similar because the “two narratives [were] strikingly different.” Id.

7 “Plaintiffs’ protagonist, Gamble, emerge[d] from domestic security, to despair at the loss
8 of his son, to revenge and triumph when he defeats his ruthless antagonist, Saigo. In 9 contrast, the protagonist in [d]efendants’ film move[d] from isolation and self-destructive 10 behavior, to the discovery of traditional values and a way of life that he later comes to 11 embrace. Thus, unlike Plaintiffs’ Screenplay, which is largely a revenge story, 12 Defendants’ film is more a captivity narrative reminiscent in some respects [of] Dances
13 With Wolves.” Id. at 626.

14 In this case, although they share the same premise and a number of elements that follow naturally
15 from that premise, the two works at issue tell fundamentally different stories. Walk of Shame is the story
16 of a conservative news anchor whose goal in life is to achieve perfection. The narrative conveys the 17 message that one must be content to be oneself, with attendant imperfections, instead of living one’s life
18 to satisfy or please others. In the first exchange between Meghan and her boss, Dan Karlin, he tells her 19 that she should “be [her]self” when she interviews for the lead anchor job. Meghan responds, “I just 20 want to be what they want.”¹⁴⁸ By the end of the film, Meghan has come full circle and realizes that 21 being what others want her to be is not how she wants to live her life. On live television, with studio
22 executives who could offer her her “dream job,” Meghan says:

23 “I tried hard my entire life to be perfect. Perfect husband, perfect dog, perfect job. But 24 now that I’ve been out in the streets . . . I can tell you, the world isn’t perfect. And 25 neither am I. . . . [W]hatever I did, I did it because I was trying to convince a few people 26 . . . I am something I no longer am. I’m not safe or perfect. If I’m going to tell you the 27

28 ¹⁴⁸*Id.* at 2 (emphasis original).

1 news, I should be telling you the real story, not reading a script. I'm not an anchor.

2 Because anchors sit and rust. . . . I'm going to shine."¹⁴⁹

3 Despite Shame on You's assertions to the contrary, the narrative of Darci's Walk of Shame does
4 not convey the notion that one should ignore societal expectations and be happy with oneself. Although 5 Shame on You contends that at the end of the film, Darci realizes she does not care what others think 6 of her because she reveals her walk of shame at her sister's farewell brunch, this mischaracterizes the 7 screenplay. As noted, Darci allows Nathan to tell those present that they spent a romantic evening
8 together the night before.¹⁵⁰ It is only when Justin arrives, and explains what actually happened, i.e., 9 that Darci got drunk and went home with him, that the truth is revealed.¹⁵¹ Moreover, far from 10 suggesting that Darci did not care what those at the brunch thought, the screenplay states that Darci
11 "can't stand" the looks she is getting after Justin discloses the truth, and leaves the brunch looking 12 "visibly upset."¹⁵² As Garner and Broken Road contend, Darci's Walk of Shame is primarily a 13 romantic comedy. Love and finding the "right guy" are the focal points of the narrative, as evidenced 14 by the setting in idyllic Maui, the fact that Darci is attending her sister's wedding, and the fact that 15 Nathan follows Darci to rainy Chicago because he wants to be with her. Indeed, the screenplay ends
16 with the two embracing outside O'Hare International Airport in the pouring rain. Gordon and Meghan
17 appear to be at the beginning of a relationship that could develop into a romance in Walk of Shame, but 18 they are not described as being in love, and love is not even a sub-theme of the work. The most Meghan
19 ever says about Gordon is that it "[t]urns out [she] like[s] him, and [she's] pretty sure he likes [her 20 too]."¹⁵³

21 The case is thus analogous to Funky Films, in which the works at issue told the story of a small 22 funeral home operated by two brothers after the sudden death of their father. 462 F.3d at 1077. The 23 ¹⁴⁹*Id.* at 98.

24 ¹⁵⁰DWOS at 94-97.

25 ¹⁵¹*Id.* at 97-99.

26 ¹⁵²*Id.* at 99.

27 ¹⁵³WOS at 98.

1 Ninth Circuit observed that the works shared numerous similarities, in many ways more striking than 2 the ones in this case. For example, in both works, the older brother moved home from a far away city,
3 was creative, unlike his conservative younger brother, and initially had no interest in becoming involved
4 in the family business. In both, the business was financially fragile, and a rival funeral home attempted
5 to acquire the business but failed. Finally, in both, the younger brother changed his church affiliation
6 in order to increase the client base. Id. at 1077-78. Closer examination of the works revealed, however,
7 that one was essentially a murder mystery, while the other was a study of “the way the characters
8 struggle with life in the wake of the cataclysmic death of [their] father.” Id. at 1078 (emphasis omitted).
9 The Ninth Circuit therefore held that the plots developed “quite differently,” and rejected the plaintiffs’
10 copyright claim. Id.

11 Here, as in Funky Films, because the plots of the works develop differently, and because many 12 of the similarities are, in fact, unprotectable scènes-à-faire, there is no substantial similarity in plot that 13 would warrant a finding of copyright infringement.

14 b. Themes

15 The themes of the works are likewise not substantially similar. Shame on You argues that both 16 works have a “core theme of comedy, embarrassment, and irony following a grown woman’s ‘walk of 17 shame’ (mis)adventure that she is much too old for.”¹⁵⁴ The mere fact that a theme is comedic or ironic 18 is not protectable. See Willis, 2001 WL 1352916 at *2 (“The problem with Plaintiff’s claim . . . is that,
19 to the extent that there are similarities, they are found either in stock characters, or themes that are 20 common to the talent agency business, or to situation comedies in general or in trivial detail that are not 21 essential to either series”); see also Benjamin v. Walt Disney Co., No. CV 05-2280 GPS, 2007 WL 22 1655783, *5 (C.D. Cal. June 5, 2007) (“Plaintiffs also contend that the following themes are also 23 expressed in both works: (1) ‘people do not choose love, love chooses you;’ (2) ‘in relationships you 24 can either follow your head or follow your heart;’ and (3) ‘sometimes what you are looking for . . . is 25 right where you left it.’ While these themes are evident in both Sweet Home and Rescue Me, . . . stock
26 themes ‘cannot raise a triable issue of fact on [a] plaintiff’s copyright claim.’ These themes are very 27

28 ¹⁵⁴MTD Opposition at 14.

1 common in other romantic comedies, and therefore cannot raise a triable issue of fact”).

2 Shame on You appears to contend that the protectable similarity between the screenplays in this
3 case is the fact that Darci and Meghan are both “much too old” to make a walk of shame. It is unclear
4 why Shame on You maintains that a thirty-something woman is “much too old” for a walk of shame.
5 The assertion, moreover, is arguably belied by the text of the Darci’s Walk of Shame screenplay, which,
6 in the opening scene, directs the camera to focus on various young and “NOT SO YOUNG WOMEN” making
7 a walk of shame.¹⁵⁵ More fundamentally, Walk of Shame does not communicate such a theme. The 8 work does not suggest that Meghan is too old to make a walk of shame; indeed, it appears that her
9 friends – who are roughly her age – make walks of shame as well. For example, Denise goes home with 10 someone she had just met after going to the same nightclub at which Meghan meets Gordon, and he 11 appears in the film to be older than she is.¹⁵⁶

12 As Garner and Broken Road argue, the core theme of Walk of Shame is, as noted, being content
13 with oneself’s and one’s imperfections and not living one’s life to please others.¹⁵⁷ By contrast, Darci’s
14 Walk of Shame is primarily a romantic comedy; Darci does not undergo a self-transformation similar 15 to Meghan’s.¹⁵⁸ Although Shame on You contends Darci realizes she does not care what others think 16 of her because she reveals her walk of shame at her sister’s brunch, in reality, Darci allows Nathan to 18 ¹⁵⁵DWOS at 2 (capitalization original).

19 ¹⁵⁶WOS at 48.

20 ¹⁵⁷MTD at 7.

21
22 ¹⁵⁸As Garner and Broken Road argue (MTD at 6-7), even if Darci’s Walk of Shame employed 23 a similar theme of learning to be content with who one is, courts have held that similar themes – e.g., 24 self-reliance – are not protectable as a matter of law. See Campbell v. Walt Disney Co., 718 F.Supp.2d 25 1108, 1113 (N.D. Cal. 2010) (dismissing a complaint because “themes of self-reliance and the 26 importance of friendship and teamwork” are not protectable); see Gadh v. Spiegel, No. CV 14-855 JFW 27 (PJWx), 2014 WL 1778950, *5 (C.D. Cal. Apr. 2, 2014) (finding that the “abstract” theme of “an 28 in-depth look at the human psyche through the interaction of the characters’ and a special ‘phone’” was not protectable); see also Olson v. National Broadcasting Co., Inc., 855 F.2d 1446, 1450 (9th Cir. 1988)
(the idea of a group action-adventure series portraying Vietnam veterans in a positive light as they perform good deeds is not protectable). Because Darci’s Walk of Shame does not employ this theme, however, the court need not decide whether, on the facts of this case, such a theme is unprotectable as a matter of law.

1 tell a different story,¹⁵⁹ cannot tolerate the looks she receives when Justin reveals the truth, and leaves
2 looking “visibly upset.”¹⁶⁰ The story does not end with Darci accepting or embracing her imperfections;
3 rather, it ends as Darci and Nathan kiss at the Chicago airport to which he has followed her – an 4 undoubtedly tender, romantic conclusion.

5 In sum, the court concludes that the themes of the two works are not substantially similar.

6 c. Dialogue

7 To show substantial similarity based on dialogue, a plaintiff must establish “extended similarity
8 of dialogue.” Olson, 855 F.2d at 1450. Ordinary words and phrases are not entitled to copyright 9 protection, nor are “phrases or expressions conveying an idea typically expressed in a limited number
10 of stereotyped fashions.” Narell v. Freeman, 872 F.2d 907, 911-12 (9th Cir. 1989). Garner and Broken
11 Road argue that a comparison of the two works indicates there is virtually no overlap in dialogue. The 12 court agrees. The court’s review indicates that the overlap in dialogue is isolated and involves common
13 words or phrases. Meghan asserts she is a “good girl” in her interview for the lead anchor position,¹⁶¹
14 while Darci’s mother tells her she is a “good girl” because she has never made a walk of shame.¹⁶² In 15 its opposition, Shame on You notes that the words “whore” and “prostitute” are used throughout each
16 work.¹⁶³ The court notes that there are also references to relationships and to “sexy” or “slutty” attire
17 throughout the works.¹⁶⁴ Shame on You alleges in the first amended complaint that both works feature
18 parking signs that use similar words to indicate that a particular area is a towaway zone.¹⁶⁵ These 19 comparisons, however, do not support a finding that the dialogue of the works is substantially similar

20
21 ¹⁵⁹DWOS at 94-97.

22 ¹⁶⁰*Id.* at 99.

23 ¹⁶¹WOS Movie at 1:03.

24 ¹⁶²DWOS at 27.

25 ¹⁶³MTD Opposition at 16.

26 ¹⁶⁴See, e.g., DWOS at 14 (“Ohh. Sexy”); WOS at 12 (“You’re wearing something slutty”).

27 ¹⁶⁵FAC, ¶ 29(22) (comparing “NO PARKING . . . CARS WILL BE TOWED” in Darci’s Walk
28 of Shame to “NO PARK – TOWAWAY ZONE” in Walk of Shame).

1 because they involve “short, stock phrases which are not protectable.” Merrill v. Paramount Pictures
2 Corp., No. CV 05 1150 SVW (MANx), 2005 WL 3955653, *13 (C.D. Cal. Dec. 19, 2005) (finding no
3 similarity in dialogue where “in each fight scene, the female protagonist tells an aggressive male to ‘stop
4 it’ [and] the aggressive male . . . says to the female lead: ‘let’s go,’” citing Soutco, Inc. v. Kanebridge
5 Corp., 390 F.3d 276, 285-287 (3d Cir. 2004) (recognizing the longstanding principle of copyright law
6 that words and short phrases are not copyrightable)); Bernal v. Paradigm Talent & Literary Agency, 788
7 F.Supp.2d 1043, 1072 (C.D. Cal. 2010) (agreeing that certain “lines contain[ed] similar words,” such 8 as “I miss you,” “He’s so funny,” “Stay away from this neighborhood,” and “Mmm. That’s it,” but 9 finding they were “ordinary, common expressions that [were] not copyrightable”); see also Ets Hokin
10 v. Skyy Spirits, Inc., 225 F.3d 1068, 1081 (9th Cir. 2000) (“Brand names, trade names, slogans, and other 11 short phrases or expressions cannot be copyrighted, even if they are distinctively arranged or printed”).

12 Shame on You cites paragraph 29 of the first amended complaint, which it asserts compares the 13 dialogue used in the works. For the most part, paragraph 29 alleges similarity of dialogue in conclusory
14 fashion without quoting the language at issue. Cf. Wild v. NBC Universal, Inc., 788 F.Supp.2d 1083, 15 1106 (C.D. Cal. 2011) (“Plaintiff avoids dealing with the lack of any similarity in dialog[ue] by 16 asserting, in cursory fashion, that in the first two episodes ‘even the dialogue is similar’ to that found
17 in Carnival of Souls. This assertion is cursory because even a casual comparison of the two works 18 demonstrates its absurdity”), aff’d, 513 Fed. Appx. 640 (9th Cir. Feb. 28, 2013) (Unpub. Disp.). The 19 court has conducted an independent review of the works in their entirety. Other than the similarities 20 noted above, the only other comparisons of dialogue – as opposed to plot summary – found in paragraph 21 29 are not at all similar. Shame on You compares Lori’s statement to Darci that she should “be the 22 flame, not the moth,” to Rose’s demand that Meghan not “block the cock.” The court cannot discern 23 how this dialogue is similar in any respect. The first reference appears to be advice that Darci should 24 be alluring so that she can attract a man rather than being someone who is attracted to men who will 25 ultimately disappoint her. The second reference is essentially a demand that Meghan not interfere with 26 Rose’s ability to score sexually.

27 Shame on You also asserts that each lead’s ex-boyfriend apologizes for the break-up. This 28 mischaracterizes the dialogue, however. In Darci’s Walk of Shame, Brian sincerely apologizes to Darci.

1 He says that he is sorry, that she deserved “a great guy,” that he was not that person, and that he had
2 been waiting until the day she realized that and broke up with him.¹⁶⁶ By contrast, in Walk of Shame,
3 Meghan calls Kyle while at a “ghetto crackhouse” in downtown Los Angeles. When Kyle answers,
4 perturbed, he says quietly to her: “Meghan? What are you . . . You were never going to call me. . . . I
5 thought we weren’t going to talk.” Meghan says she “had to call,” and he cuts her off, saying: “Look.
6 Breaking up was the hardest thing I ever did. . . .” He then tells her to “hold on,” slips out of bed, and 7 admits he is sleeping with another woman.¹⁶⁷ The dialogue in these scenes is not substantially similar.
8 Brian’s apology is sincere and is intended to make Darci feel better and understand her worth. Kyle 9 does not apologize; he reminds Meghan that she agreed never to call him again, and then makes her feel 10 worse by telling her he is sleeping with another woman. That Kyle’s statement was not sincere is 11 reinforced at the end of Walk of Shame; Kyle watches on television as Meghan reveals that she is 12 imperfect and no longer cares about pleasing others. His new girlfriend says: “You were engaged to 13 her? Seriously?” Kyle responds: “So glad I dumped her.”¹⁶⁸ The dialogue between the lead characters 14 and their ex-boyfriends in the two works is not similar in language or meaning.

15 Finally, Shame on You contends that the dialogue that takes place at the towing company in each 16 work is substantially similar. In both works, the lead character states that she does not own the car that 17 has been towed, but has the keys. The lead actresses are without their purses, albeit for different reasons
18 (Darci’s purse is at the hotel, while Meghan believes hers is in her car although it was actually stolen).
19 Garner and Broken Road do not address the similarity in this dialogue, and the court finds that it has 20 articulable similarities. Aside from this limited exchange, however, the remainder of the dialogue lacks 21 any articulable similarities.

22 d. Mood

23 Garner and Broken Road also argue that the mood of the screenplays is not substantially similar.
24 A general mood that flows “naturally from unprotectable basic plot premises” is not entitled to

25
26 ¹⁶⁶DWOS at 79-80.

27 ¹⁶⁷WOS at 36.

28 ¹⁶⁸*Id.* at 99.

1 protection. Rice, 330 F.3d at 1177 (concluding that the mood of secrecy and mystery in works about 2 the mystery of magic was “generic, constitute[d] scènes a faire, and merge[d] with the idea of revealing
3 magic tricks”). Thus, Shame on You cannot demonstrate there is substantial similarity in mood by 4 arguing that both works are light-hearted comedies that involve a walk of shame. See Olson, 855 F.2d
5 at 1451 (“Both shows may be broadly described as comic, and they therefore have similar moods. Both
6 works are quickly paced. However, these similarities are common to the genre of action-adventure
7 television series and movies and therefore do not demonstrate substantial similarity”); Walker v. Time
8 Life Films, Inc., 784 F.2d 44, 50 (2d Cir. 1986) (denying protection to “‘stock’ themes commonly linked
9 to a particular genre”); Berkic, 761 F.2d at 1293–94 (denying protection to “familiar scenes and themes
10 [which] are among the very staples of modern American literature and film”).

11 Setting aside this abstract and unprotectable similarity, the mood of the two works is quite 12 different. Darci’s Walk of Shame is a romantic comedy in which Darci tramples a golf course while 13 driving a stolen golf cart, is bit by a poisonous snake, and is rescued in a helicopter by the man of her
14 dreams while at an upscale destination wedding at the Four Seasons Maui. Despite the fact that there
15 is a love interest, Walk of Shame is not primarily a romantic comedy. It has a decidedly urban tone, and 16 tells the story of an uptight character who is forced to examine the things that are important to her in life
17 while being exposed to some of the less savory aspects of Los Angeles, e.g., “ghetto crack houses.”¹⁶⁹
18 The only similarities in mood are scènes-à-faire that are not entitled to protection.

19 e. Setting

20 Garner and Broken Road also argue that the setting of the two works is entirely different.¹⁷⁰ The 21 court agrees. Walk of Shame is set in Los Angeles, California, and the city features prominently in the 22 screenplay and film. The story begins in the KZLA news room in Hollywood, and moves to suburban 23 Brentwood, where Meghan’s apartment is located. Friends convince her to go to a nightclub in 24 downtown Los Angeles. In the movie, Los Angeles’ financial district, and the train yards and bridges

26 ¹⁶⁹*Shame on You* contends that a male lead helps both female lead characters get to their final 27 destinations. This is a description of plot, not mood, and is discussed above.

28 ¹⁷⁰MTD at 9.

1 behind Union Station are showcased. Meghan also visits a “ghetto crackhouse” somewhere downtown.
2 She passes the Wilshire District, traveling from Western Avenue to MacArthur Park, where she boards
3 a Los Angeles Metro bus and travels to a Jewish synagogue in midtown. In one of the final scenes,
4 Meghan runs across Interstate 10 just ahead of oncoming traffic following the end of “Carpocalypse”
5 – a reference to “Carmageddon” in 2012, which closed the 405 Freeway for an entire weekend to 6 facilitate road expansion and repair.¹⁷¹

7 Darci’s Walk of Shame is set primarily on the island of Maui in Hawaii, although it begins and 8 ends in Chicago, Illinois. Maui is depicted as a paradise for married couples or people in love; it is 9 certainly not an urban city like Los Angeles. The majority of travelers on Darci’s plane to Maui are 10 honeymooners. When she arrives at the hotel in Maui, the honeymoon theme continues; she is informed 11 that there is a complimentary bottle of champagne and strawberries with whipped cream in her room,
12 together with massage oils and “even a special lovers’ massage table for two.”¹⁷² Other than the opening
13 and closing scenes in Chicago, Darci’s Walk of Shame takes place entirely on Maui; it involves beach 14 scenes, active volcanoes, a horseback ride to the coast, and a helicopter flight in which much of the 15 island is showcased. It is evident that the settings of the two works are substantially different, not 16 similar.

17 Shame on You counters that each work takes place in a city, and employs similar settings. The 18 mere fact that some portion of both works occurs in a city is “generic and inconsequential, [and thus] 19 fail[s] to meet substantial similarity.” Rice, 330 F.3d at 1177. Shame on You asserts, more specifically, 20 that both works include a “gentleman’s room where [a] one-night-stand takes place, a tow yard, a place
21 of worship, a spa, city streets . . . , an outdoor chase on wheels, and a helicopter ride.”¹⁷³ The use of a 22 gentleman’s bedroom is a scène-à-faire, since going home with someone met at a bar, party or club is 23 an essential element of a walk of shame. See Cavalier, 297 F.3d at 824 (“[T]his setting naturally and 24 necessarily flows from the basic plot premise . . . [and] therefore . . . constitutes scenes-a-faire and 25

26 ¹⁷¹WOS at 7.

27 ¹⁷²DWOS at 14.

28 ¹⁷³MTD Opposition at 15.

1 cannot support a finding of substantial similarity”); see also Benay, 607 F.3d at 627-28 (“Given that both
2 works involve an American war veteran who travels to Japan to help the Emperor fight a samurai
3 rebellion, it is not surprising that they share certain settings: a scene of the protagonist sailing into Japan,
4 scenes in the Imperial Palace, scenes on the Imperial Army’s training grounds, and battle scenes in 5 various places in Japan. These are all scènes-à-faire that flow naturally from the works’ shared
6 unprotected premise and are therefore disregarded for purposes of the extrinsic test”). Moreover, despite 7 Shame on You’s assertion, there are essentially no scenes that take place on city streets in Darci’s Walk
8 of Shame; in any event, the use of city streets is generic and flows from the unprotectable concept of 9 setting a work in a city.

10 There is some degree of similarity between the settings of the works to the extent each lead
11 character finds herself at a tow yard. Garner and Broken Road argue that cherry picking this type of 12 example obscures the fact that Walk of Shame is set in Los Angeles while Darci’s Walk of Shame is set
13 in Hawaii (except for brief Chicago scenes).¹⁷⁴ Moreover, they assert that to the extent such similarities
14 are considered, they are simply scènes-à-faire.¹⁷⁵ They contend it was necessary to drive from 15 Brentwood to downtown Los Angeles to go to a nightclub; for Meghan to make a walk of shame, her 16 car had to be towed. Had Meghan simply been able to drive her car to KZLA, there would have been 17 no walk of shame, and no movie. For this reason, defendants contend, the tow yard setting “naturally
18 and necessarily flows from the basic plot premise . . . [and] therefore . . . constitutes [a] scene[]-a-faire
19 [that] cannot support a finding of substantial similarity.” See Cavalier, 297 F.3d at 824. Although it 20 is reasonably foreseeable that if one’s car is towed, one might have to walk some distance, one could 21 also call a cab, call a car service like Uber or Lyft, or call a friend. Similarly, there are numerous other 22 ways that someone like Meghan could have been stranded – she might have driven to the nightclub in 23 Rose’s or Denise’s car and been without transportation after she left with Gordon; her car could have 24 been stolen; it could have been damaged in a collision with another car; or it could have had mechanical 25 problems. Thus, there is an articulable similarity in setting insofar as the car the lead character is using 27 ¹⁷⁴MTD Reply at 6.

28 ¹⁷⁵*Id.*

1 is towed in both movies, and she ends up at a tow lot.

2 Shame on You counters that both works also involve chase scenes and a helicopter ride. A close
3 inspection of the screenplays demonstrates that the chase scenes are not similar, however. In Darci's
4 Walk of Shame, Darci steals a golf cart from a group of Japanese golfers and is chased around a resort
5 golf course by angry golfers.¹⁷⁶ There is no parallel in Walk of Shame. Although in one of the final
6 scenes, Meghan runs on foot from police officers trying to apprehend her, the two scenes have no
7 parallels beyond the fact that they involve the abstract, generic concept of an “outdoor chase on wheels”;
8 such a concept is not entitled to protection. See Identity Arts v. Best Buy Enter. Servs. Inc., No. C
9 05 4656 PJH, 2007 WL 1149155, *16 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 18, 2007) (“To the extent that similarities exist, 10 they are too generic to qualify for protection, or otherwise unprotectable (e.g., scenes a faire”).

11 Shame on You is correct that both works involve helicopter rides, however. In Darci's Walk of 12 Shame, Nathan rescues Darci and takes her on a helicopter tour of Maui before dropping her off at a 13 ranch near her hotel. The helicopter involved in Walk of Shame is the KZLA traffic helicopter operated 14 by “Chopper Steve.” Chopper Steve reports traffic conditions in every scene in which he appears. He 15 adds comedic relief, as he makes bad jokes, apparently because he stopped taking his medication. Near 16 the end of the screenplay, Meghan and Gordon ride in Chopper Steve’s helicopter to KZLA, although 17 the ride itself is not depicted. Thus, while it is true the lead character takes a helicopter ride in both 18 works, the helicopter is not a setting in Walk of Shame as the ride is not shown, and the settings are not 19 similar in this respect. Nonetheless, just as having one’s car towed is not necessary to a walk of shame, 20 having a helicopter transport the lead character to her final destination is not a necessary scène-à-faire.
21 Accordingly, there is an articulable similarity between the settings of the two works to the extent both 22 include a helicopter ride that takes the lead character to her final destination.

23 Finally, although the court agrees that a portion of each work is set in a place of worship and a 24 spa, the scenes are not substantially similar. Darci's Walk of Shame involves a church, while Walk of 25 Shame involves a synagogue in midtown Los Angeles. There is nothing similar about the settings (or 26 what happens at the settings) other than the general fact that they are houses of worship. Similarly, the 27

28 ¹⁷⁶DWOS at 41-47.

1 spa in Darci's Walk of Shame is at the Four Seasons hotel; Darci and her family and friends visit it
2 before her walk of shame. The spa in Walk of Shame is in Koreatown; Meghan visits it while frantically
3 avoiding the police and trying to get to KZLA. Nothing about the settings is substantially similar so as 4 to warrant a finding of copyright infringement.

5 In sum, both works involve tow lot scenes and a helicopter ride, but none of the remaining the 6 protectable settings in the works is substantially similar. Moreover, as noted, “[s]ome of the settings
7 are strikingly dissimilar,” which cuts against a finding of substantial similarity. Benay, 607 F.3d at 628
8 (noting the striking dissimilarity in many aspects of the settings, and concluding there was no substantial 9 similarity).

10 f. Pace

11 Garner and Broken Road maintain it is difficult to compare the pacing of a produced film to a 12 “flat” screenplay. Nonetheless, it is apparent that Darci's Walk of Shame contains more characters, 13 scenes, and dialogue than does Walk of Shame. As a result, the pacing in Darci's Walk of Shame must 14 of necessity be faster than the pacing of Walk of Shame. Shame on You disputes this. It contends that 15 the pace of each work is “extremely similar,” because the “fact that each takes place over a very short 16 period of time (basically a day) is not standard.”¹⁷⁷

17 “The time period within which the movie is set is a factor [in] determining the pace of the 18 movie.” Campbell, 718 F.Supp.2d at 1115 (citing Capcom Co., Ltd. v. MKR Group, Inc., No.
19 08–0904–RS, 2008 WL 4661479, *10 (N.D. Cal. Oct. 20, 2008) (finding no substantial similarity in the 20 pace of two works due partly to the fact that one story was completed within three days while the other
21 took place over many months)). Nonetheless, the court cannot find the pace of the two works
22 substantially similar. Darci's Walk of Shame takes place over the course of three days: Darci arrives
23 on Maui, goes to the rehearsal dinner, and attends her sister’s wedding the following day; at the 24 reception, she gets drunk, which results in her walk of shame over the course of the following day. Walk
25 of Shame takes place over roughly a twenty-four hour period; it involves a single night only. An 26 examination of the screenplays, moreover, confirms that the pace is markedly different. Darci's Walk

27
28 ¹⁷⁷MTD Opposition at 17.

1 of Shame begins in the morning in Chicago, where Brian and Darci break up. Darci then flies to Maui,
2 and spends time there with her family before the rehearsal dinner. On what appears to be the following
3 day, the bridal party visits a spa, and the wedding and wedding reception take place. Darci’s walk of 4 shame consumes much of the day after the wedding, followed by her arrival at the farewell brunch.¹⁷⁸

5 During her last day on Maui, Darci goes to church, tries to get Justin’s car out of the impound lot, is 6 bitten by a snake, is saved by Nathan, goes on a long helicopter ride, runs into Brian and Virginia while 7 trying to avoid her parents, and is transported in a canoe by native Hawaiians; all this occurs before the 8 brunch. As can be seen, Darci’s Walk of Shame is fast-paced.

9 The pace of Walk of Shame is significantly less fast than Darci’s Walk of Shame. The story
10 unfolds over roughly twenty-four hours; there is no flight to Hawaii or change of time zones, and 11 significantly fewer events are packed into a short period. See Rice v. Fox Broadcasting Co., 148
12 F.Supp.2d 1029, 1059 (C.D. Cal. 2001) (“For similar reasons, the pace of the two presentations is also 13 quite different. This is illustrated by the fact that, in TV Special 1, the Masked Magician performs and 14 reveals eleven complicated tricks in roughly the same amount of time that it takes the Mystery Magician
15 to perform twelve tricks (many of which are less complicated) and only reveal six. The Television 16 Specials are much more fast-moving”), aff’d in relevant part, 330 F.3d 1170 (9th Cir. 2003). Even 17 assuming the pace at which the plots unfold is similar, “[t]he bare concept of a pace that is ‘fast but not 18 frenetic’ is unprotectable.” Briggs, 2014 WL 4961396 at *19; see Olson, 855 F.2d at 1451 (“Both works
19 are quickly paced. However, these similarities are common to the genre of action-adventure television 20 series and movies and therefore do not demonstrate substantial similarity”).

21 Finally, as Garner and Broken Road argue, even if it is assumed that both works feature the brisk 22 pace of many modern comedies, similarities of pace that are common to a genre are insufficient to 23 satisfy the extrinsic test.¹⁷⁹ See Olson, 855 F.2d at 1451 (“Both works are quickly paced. However, 24 these similarities are common to the genre of action-adventure television series and movies and 25 therefore do not demonstrate substantial similarity”).

26
27 ¹⁷⁸DWOS at 88.

28 ¹⁷⁹MTD at 10.

1 g. Characters

2 Garner and Broken Road next maintain that there are no meaningful similarities between the 3 characters. They assert that the main characters are completely distinguishable, beyond abstract
4 similarities that are not protectable, and that the remaining characters are not similar in any meaningful
5 respect. The court addresses each category of characters in turn.

6 (1) Meghan and Darci

7 First, Garner and Broken Road assert that the lead characters are markedly different. Meghan
8 Miles is a career woman. In the opening scene, the audience learns that she wants the network anchor
9 job for which she is interviewing because “[b]eing a network anchor is [her] dream.”¹⁸⁰ Her career focus
10 becomes even clearer when her friends, Rose and Denise, come to her apartment and ask where her 11 fiancé Kyle is. Meghan explains that he went to the supermarket; Rose quickly observes, however, that 12 most of her furniture and things are gone. Meghan first states that he brought his belongings with him 13 to the supermarket; she then “tears up,” and admits that Kyle left her because he “didn’t know who [she]
14 was anymore.”¹⁸¹ She says she did not tell her friends because she “thought getting the job would make 15 it all better.” She then “breaks into sobs,” and states that she did not get the job after all.¹⁸² The reader
16 is left with the impression that Meghan finds breaking up with her fiancé worthy of a tear, but that not 17 getting the job she wanted warrants extended sobbing. The entire premise of the movie, moreover, –
18 i.e., the walk of shame – is based on Meghan’s effort to get to the KZLA studio before the morning news
19 broadcast so that she has a second chance at the anchor job she has always wanted. Meghan is also 20 “very buttoned down[and] conservative.”¹⁸³ After learning that Meghan’s fiancé has left her, Rose said 21 that she needed to “go[] to the club [and] . . . meet some nice, young, new guy and take out all your 22 problems on his penis.”¹⁸⁴ Meghan responds that she is “a relationship kind of girl,” and would rather

23
24 ¹⁸⁰WOS at 1-2.

25 ¹⁸¹*Id.* at 11.

26 ¹⁸²*Id.*

27 ¹⁸³*Id.* at 1.

28 ¹⁸⁴*Id.* at 12.

1 stay home and watch American Idol on television. She is convinced to go to a club, but she says that she 2 will wear sweatpants. When her friends tell her she has to wear “something slutty,” Meghan says she 3 does not “have [anything] slutty like Denise.”¹⁸⁵ Her friends persuade her to wear Denise’s “short
4 yellow dress,” which makes her feel “like a prostitute.”¹⁸⁶ At the club, Meghan is hesitant to drink
5 anything; her friends order three shots; she takes one of them, and winces after taking a small sip. Her 6 friends urge her to drink the shot all at once; she takes a deep breath and finishes not only her shot, but 7 – believing she was expected to – the other two as well.¹⁸⁷ This makes apparent the fact that Meghan
8 is not a heavy drinker and is a conservative “good girl” primarily interested in her career. It also creates 9 a situation warranting a walk of shame without the intentionally heavy drinking that ordinarily leads to 10 such an event.

11 Darci is a markedly different character. Darci’s Walk of Shame does not mention Darci’s
12 occupation. Although Darci’s mother calls her a “good girl” at one point, Darci is neither conservative
13 nor uptight.¹⁸⁸ While flying to Maui after finding her ex-boyfriend Brian having sex with their travel
14 agent, Darci chats with an “uncomfortable” honeymoon couple. She shows them a picture of “Chris,” 15 and explains he was her first sexual experience; when the female of the couple says that he “seems 16 nice,” Darci retorts, “Please. I’ve had pees take longer.”¹⁸⁹ On the same flight, Darci has an even more
17 inappropriate conversation with a four-year-old girl in line for the bathroom involving sex on a plane
18 with two different ex-boyfriends.¹⁹⁰ The uptight and conservative Meghan does not engage in similarly 19 crass or inappropriate conversations in Walk of Shame, nor does the screenplay suggest in any manner 20

21 ¹⁸⁵*Id.*

22 ¹⁸⁶*Id.* at 12-13.

23 ¹⁸⁷*Id.* at 14.

24 ¹⁸⁸DWOS at 26.

25 ¹⁸⁹*Id.* at 5.

26 ¹⁹⁰*Id.* at 5-6 (“Darci: And then there was this jerk, Steve. On a flight to Aruba he wanted [] me
27 to join the mile high club. Little Girl: I’m gonna join the brownies! Darci: Yeah. Justin wanted me to 28 join that club too. Ironically – on the same flight”).

1 that Meghan would be inclined to behave in such a manner.

2 Unlike Meghan, moreover, who says she would rather stay home than go to a club, and who does
3 not know how to drink shots, Darci starts drinking as soon as she boards the plane to Maui. She “chugs”
4 a glass of champagne and immediately asks for another.¹⁹¹ After inappropriate conversations with the 5 honeymoon couple and the four-year-old, the screenplay cuts to Darci “drunk” and waiting in line for 6 the lavatory.¹⁹² Once she gets inside, the screenplay states that the audience should hear sounds of 7 vomiting coming from the toilet.¹⁹³ In addition, the precursor to Darci’s walk of shame is not as 8 innocent as Meghan’s. Darci’s walk of shame begins the night of her sister’s wedding reception. At 9 the reception, Darci is described as drinking “one of those ridiculous giant pineapple drink things.”
10 When she sees Justin, she “downs” the entire drink and wakes up the next morning at his hotel room.¹⁹⁴
11 In sum, the fact that Darci’s vocation is never mentioned, that she is crass and inappropriate, and that 12 she seems unphased by excessive drinking makes her a different character than Meghan, who is uptight
13 and conservative, and whose career obsession forms an integral part of Walk of Shame.

14 Shame on You counters that Meghan and Darci are “strikingly similar.” It maintains that both 15 are “pretty blonde but prudent wom[en] (. . . ‘good girls’) in [their] thirties who [] wear [] inappropriate 16 brightly-colored dress[es]” throughout most of the work.¹⁹⁵ These character traits are too abstract to 17 warrant copyright protection. “In determining whether characters are similar, a court looks at the 18 totality of [the characters’] attributes and traits as well as the extent to which the defendants’ characters
19 capture the total concept and feel of figures in [the plaintiff’s work].” Hogan v. DC Comics, 48 20 F.Supp.2d 298, 309-10 (S.D.N.Y. 1999) (quoting Walker, 784 F.2d at 50 (in turn quoting Warner Bros.
21 v. American Broadcasting Cos., 720 F.2d 231, 241 (2d Cir. 1983) (internal quotation marks omitted)).
22 A “stock character or basic character type . . . is not entitled to copyright protection.” Hogan, 48

23
24 ¹⁹¹*Id.* at 5.

25 ¹⁹²*Id.* at 5.

26 ¹⁹³*Id.*

27 ¹⁹⁴*Id.* at 29-30.

28 ¹⁹⁵MTD Opposition at 15-16.

1 F.Supp.2d at 310 (citing Robinson v. Viacom Int'l, Inc., No. 93 CIV. 2539 (RPP), 1995 WL 417076, *9
2 (S.D.N.Y. July 13, 1995); Sinicola v. Warner Bros., 948 F.Supp. 1176, 1185 (E.D.N.Y. 1996)). This
3 is because “only distinctive characters are protectible, not characters that merely embody unprotected
4 ideas.” Benay, 607 F.3d at 626. Accordingly, “[n]o character infringement claim can succeed unless 5 plaintiff’s original conception sufficiently developed the character, and defendants have copied this
6 development and not merely the broader outlines.” Smith v. Weinstein, 578 F.Supp. 1297, 1303, aff’d, 7 738 F.2d 419 (2d Cir. 1984); see also Nichols v. Universal Pictures Corp., 45 F.2d 119, 121 (2d Cir.
8 1930) (“the less developed the characters, the less they can be copyrighted; that is the penalty an author 9 must bear for marking them too indistinctly”).

10 The concept of an attractive, blonde “good girl” is in the public domain and cannot be 11 copyrighted. Even if the concept could theoretically be copyrighted, there is nothing distinctive about 12 the way Darci is described in Darci’s Walk of Shame. She is “32, mostly natural blonde and pretty.”¹⁹⁶
13 Notably, the Walk of Shame screenplay does not describe Meghan as blonde, in her thirties, or pretty.
14 The screenplay, in fact, does not describe the attributes of the character at all. Banks, who played
15 Meghan in the motion picture, is in her thirties, blonde, and pretty. Nonetheless, a pretty blonde in her
16 thirties is not a character that can be copyrighted. See Gadh, 2014 WL 1778950 at *5 (“The lead
17 character in each work is a male who uses a mobile device that embodies a technologically-advanced 18 electronic personal assistant. That abstract description is the full extent of any similarity in characters
19 in the two works. In addition, even if the description of the characters was similar, such a description 20 is far from the level of specificity and distinctiveness required for characters to be protected by 21 copyright”). A 32-year-old female who is pretty and likeable is a stock character that lacks the 22 distinctiveness required to invoke copyright protection. See Benjamin, 2007 WL 1655783 at *6
23 (“Melanie is the main character in Sweet Home and Maddie is the main character in Rescue Me. While 24 Plaintiff contends both are attractive, likable, 30-year-old females that have escaped their humble past 25 to pursue their dreams of working and living in the big city, these similarities are immaterial because 26 they describe the female lead in almost every romantic comedy. Such stock characters are not protected

27
28 ¹⁹⁶DWOS at 1.

1 by copyright law”); Dunn v. Brown, No. CIV.A. 10 11383 FDS, 2011 WL 4499007, *4 (D. Mass.
2 Aug. 16, 2011) (“Plaintiff proffers as evidence only that Langdon has the physical descriptions of 3 Hathaway because both characters wear jeans and are attractive, with blue eyes and nice smiles. These 4 type of generic physical descriptions, however, do not have copyright protections”); Alexander v.
5 Murdoch, No. CV 10-5613 PAC JCF, 2011 WL 2802899, *10 (S.D.N.Y. May 27, 2011) (“The plaintiff
6 also claims that Rosa and Gloria are substantially similar because each is ‘a stunningly beautiful, fiery,
7 temperamental, Latina mother, with a thick accent, who’s in love with her Caucasian [ex-
8 husband/husband] and always makes him do the right thing, especially where her son is concerned.’
9 The flaw in this comparison is that Rosa is a stock character and therefore not copyrightable”); id.
10 (“attraction to blonde women cannot be said to be a rare or unique character trait; it is a basic character
11 type and is not copyrightable”); Feldman v. Twentieth Century Fox Film Corp., 723 F.Supp.2d 357, 367
12 (D. Mass. 2010) (“Similarly, copyright protection does not extend to stock characters, such as a blond, 13 blue-eyed hero or doctors in ‘hot and cold’ romances”); Willis v. Home Box Office, No. 00 CIV. 2500 14 (JSM), 2001 WL 1352916, *3 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 2, 2001) (“Arliss Michaels and Tym Barker are not the 15 same character; they are both stereotypes of the amoral talent agent”); see also Gaiman v. McFarlane, 16 360 F.3d 644, 660 (7th Cir. 2004) (“If a drunken old bum were a copyrightable character, so would be
17 a drunken suburban housewife, a gesticulating Frenchman, a fire-breathing dragon, a talking cat, a
18 Prussian officer who wears a monocle and clicks his heels, a masked magician, and, in Learned Hand’s
19 memorable paraphrase of Twelfth Night, ‘a riotous knight who kept wassail to the discomfort of the 20 household, or a vain and foppish steward who became amorous of his mistress.’ It would be difficult 21 to write successful works of fiction without negotiating for dozens or hundreds of copyright licenses,
22 even though such stereotyped characters are the products not of the creative imagination but of simple
23 observation of the human comedy”); Walker, 784 F.2d at 50 (no copyright violation where both works 24 “feature as central characters third- or fourth-generation Irish policemen who live in Queens and 25 frequently drink; both show disgruntled, demoralized police officers and unsuccessful foot chases of 26 fleeing criminals”).

27 (2) Gordon and Nathan

28 Shame on You also contends that Gordon from Walk of Shame and Nathan from Darci’s Walk

1 of Shame are substantially similar characters. It offers little argument supporting this assertion,
2 however, stating merely that the two works feature “a male lead who is a nice guy with a number of 3 occupations.”¹⁹⁷ Gordon is a bartender and an amateur writer.¹⁹⁸ Nathan, on the other hand, is a jack
4 of all trades; he is a cab driver and a volunteer fire fighter, and also flies an emergency helicopter.
5 Although the men have multiple occupations, their work is dissimilar. The concept of a male character
6 who works two or more jobs is not protectable. Additionally, the concept of a “starving artist” like
7 Gordon who writes during the day and works another job at night to make ends meet is a well-known
8 stock character that has passed into the public domain and cannot be copyrighted. “In sum, any 9 similarity between the two characters ‘exists only at a level of abstractions too basic to permit any 10 inference that defendant[s] wrongfully appropriated any “expression” of plaintiff’s ideas.’” Arden v.
11 Columbia Pictures Indus., Inc., 908 F.Supp. 1248, 1261 (S.D.N.Y. 1995) (quoting Kretschmer v.
12 Warner Bros., No. 93 CIV. 1730 (CSH), 1994 WL 259814, *11 (S.D.N.Y. June 8, 1994) (in turn quoting 13 Zambito v. Paramount Pictures Corp., 613 F.Supp. 1107, 111w (E.D.N.Y. 1985)).

14 As the court has noted with respect to Darci and Meghan, the mere fact that the male leads are 15 “nice guys” is not a protectable character trait. As Garner and Broken Road argue, Shame on You 16 attempts to manufacture similarity by pointing to general character types that are not protected by 17 copyright. The male lead in almost any light-hearted comedy is likeable. In such works, “good guys”
18 with whom the female lead falls in love are stock characters. See Rice, 330 F.3d at 1176 (“[W]hile there 19 may exist similarities between the magician ‘characters,’ any shared attributes of appearance and 20 mysterious demeanor are generic and common”); Campbell, 718 F.Supp.2d at 1115 (“Thus, the 21 characters generically labeled in the Complaint only as a ‘cocky kid’ and an ‘older mentor’ are not 22 protected by copyright law. Moreover, the Court does not find anything outside of the two characters’
23 generic cocky attitude to be similar”); Benjamin, 2007 WL 1655783 at *6 (“While Plaintiff contends 24 both are attractive, likable, 30-year-old females that have escaped their humble past to pursue their

26 ¹⁹⁷MTD Opposition at 16. Shame on You also asserts that both male leads “help[] the female 27 lead character reach her destination and ultimately find (it is suggested at least) lasting romance with 28 him.” (Id.) This is not a character trait, but rather an element of the plot, which is discussed above.

¹⁹⁸WOS at 20.

1 dreams of working and living in the big city, these similarities are immaterial because they describe the 2 female lead in almost every romantic comedy. Such stock characters are not protected by copyright 3 law”).

4 (3) Comical Taxi Driver

5 Shame on You asserts that “a comical character taxi driver []keeps showing up” in both 6 screenplays. In Darci’s Walk of Shame, Nathan – the lead male character – is the taxi driver who “keeps 7 showing up.” In Walk of Shame, Meghan takes a taxi to get her car, which has been towed from 8 Gordon’s apartment. When she tells the cab driver that her purse is in her car and that she has no
9 money, he pulls out a gun and says she can either give him a lap dance or go to jail. Later in the 10 screenplay and film, she runs into the cab driver again, and he threatens to kill her. Nathan – the love
11 interest who saves Darci’s life – is in no way similar to the “comical” taxi driver in Walk of Shame.
12 That characters in both works drive a taxi is unremarkable.

13 (4) Ex-Boyfriends

14 Shame on You cites the fact that both works involve ex-boyfriends who break up with the female 15 lead early in the film, prompted, as the audience discovers, by involvement with another woman. In 16 Darci’s Walk of Shame, Darci catches Brian cheating on her in the opening scene; the other woman is 17 the couple’s travel agent.¹⁹⁹ Brian and Kyle, however, are markedly different characters that play
18 different roles in the story. Brian comes to Hawaii, albeit with the travel agent Virginia, runs into Darci,
19 and tells her she is very special and deserves someone better than him. Kyle is arrogant and obviously 20 cares little about Meghan. Unlike Brian, who praises Darci, Kyle refuses to help Meghan – his ex-fiancé
21 – when she calls him from a crackhouse, and, after watching her reveal her walk of shame on television,
22 expresses satisfaction that he “dumped” her. Thus, other than the fact that they are ex-boyfriends –
23 which is a generalized concept – there are no articulable similarities between the characters.

24 (5) A Loud-Mouthed Swearing Female Best Friend in a 25 Prominent Supporting Role

26 Shame on You also asserts that both screenplays feature a loud-mouthed female best friend who 27

28 ¹⁹⁹DWOS at 2-3.

1 swears as a prominent supporting character. It does not identify who these characters are, however, and 2 there is no explicit mention of such a character in Darci's Walk of Shame. One character – Lori – may
3 be a friend of Darci's, although it is more likely she is either a family member or a friend of Darci's
4 sister Deena. For purposes of this analysis, however, the court will assume that Lori is Darci's loud-
5 mouthed friend. Lori swears frequently, and adds some comedic elements to the script. Darci meets
6 Lori and family members at the spa, completely covered to avoid the sun; Lori comments: "Ooh. Sexy."
7 When Darci says the two will have to "see who[is] old and wrinkled twenty years from now," Lori
8 responds: "Fuck that. I'm already old and wrinkled."²⁰⁰ Lori also injects comedy when Darci talks
9 about Brian. After someone says they heard about the break-up with Brian, the following dialogue 10 ensues:

11 "Lori: I, for one, always hated that guy.

12 Darci: Um – you introduced me to him.

13 Lori: No I didn't.

14 Darci: Lori. He's your brother in law.

15 Lori: Oh, right. Sorry."²⁰¹

16 Lori is pregnant and married to a man named Roy, a character who plays a minimal role in the film.²⁰²

17 Shame on You appears to believe that Rose is the character in Walk of Shame who is similar to 18 Lori. Rose calls Meghan a "dirty hooker" and "cockblocker," and badgers Meghan to go to a nightclub
19 with her and Denise.²⁰³ Outside Meghan's house in Brentwood, Rose does not immediately understand
20 that Kyle has left Meghan and has not simply gone to the supermarket with all of his belongings. Unlike 21 Lori, who is married and pregnant, Rose gets drunk at the nightclub and goes home with a "biker man."
22 The next morning, she says: "This was a mistake. I thought I was 23 taking home this cute, younger guy." The 24

25 ²⁰⁰*Id.* at 15.

26 ²⁰¹*Id.*

27 ²⁰²*Id.*

28 ²⁰³WOS at 4.

1 biker replies: “Oh, you mean my son. We
2 get confused all the time. Crazy night,
3 huh?”²⁰⁴

4 Lori and Rose share certain abstract similarities; arguably, both are loud-mouthed friends of the 5 lead character. This type of abstract similarity is not entitled to copyright protection for reasons already
6 discussed, however. See Williams, 84 F.3d at 582 (no copyright protection where there were no 7 similarities “beyond . . . superficial similarities” such as age, gender, and relationship as siblings).
8 Moreover, Lori’s role in Darci’s Walk of Shame is limited, and her character is not well developed.
9 Where, as here, characters are indistinct or not well developed, they cannot be afforded copyright
10 protection. See Lewinson v. Henry Holt & Co., LLC, 659 F.Supp.2d 547, 566 (S.D.N.Y. 2009) (“None
11 of the characters is discussed on more than one page of the work, and the characters’ personality traits
12 are undeveloped. The use of such indistinct stock characters does not warrant copyright protection”); 13 Nichols, 45 F.2d at 121 (concluding that the depiction of two young lovers was “so faintly indicated”
14 that they were not characters protected by copyright); Robinson, 1995 WL 417076 at *9 (concluding 15 that characters were not protectable where the copyrighted work presented no “character development 16 beyond introducing characters clearly derived from a long line of family-based sitcoms”).

17 Moreover, a loud-mouthed best friend in a comedy film is a stock character that “flow[s]
18 necessarily or naturally from a basic plot premise, [and] cannot sustain a finding of infringement.” See 19 Cavalier, 297 F.3d at 823; see also, e.g., Rice, 330 F.3d at 1176 (“[W]hile there may exist similarities
20 between the magician ‘characters,’ any shared attributes of appearance and mysterious demeanor are 21 generic and common”); A Slice of Pie Prods., LLC v. Wayans Bros. Entertainment, 487 F.Supp.2d 41, 22 48 (D. Conn. 2007) (noting that uncopyrightable characters and elements such as “FBI agents working
23 undercover, African American characters disguising themselves as Caucasian characters, and men
24 disguising themselves as women, were non-novel concepts used in the film industry long before
25 plaintiff’s authors drafted the screenplay”); Willis, 2001 WL 1352916 at *2 (the concept of “talent
26 agents who operate in a ‘bottom-dwelling ethical nether world, where lying is an art form; insincerity, 27

28 ²⁰⁴*Id.* at 49.

1 a science[;] and personal convictions are as commonplace as nose rings’ . . . is not original or protectible
2 under the copyright law”); cf. Donchez v. Coors Brewing Co., 392 F.3d 1211, 1223 (10th Cir. 2004)
3 (“Reviewing the record on appeal, it is apparent that the general idea of using a funny and colorful beer 4 vending character to promote beer products is not, in fact, novel”).

5 (6) The Dresses

6 Shame on You also maintains that the dresses worn by Darci and Meghan are substantially
7 similar inasmuch as both play a predominant role in the screenplay. More specifically, Shame on You
8 contends that the use of a brightly colored dress in a comedy is a copyrightable concept. The court is 9 unconvinced. First, it is unclear that the dress Darci wears is properly described as brightly colored – 10 it may well be pastel; in any event, a brightly colored dress, standing alone, is entirely generic and 11 therefore not a copyrightable concept, especially not in a comedy.²⁰⁵ See Gaiman, 360 F.3d at 660; cf.
12 Reece v. Island Treasures Art Gallery, Inc., 468 F.Supp.2d 1197, 1207 (D. Haw. 2006) (“Further, the 13 dancer’s hula kahiko dress is scenes a faire”); Winfield Collection Ltd. v. Gemmy Indus. Corp., 311
14 F.Supp.2d 611, 616 17 (E.D. Mich. 2004) (“That is, the pointed hat, the flowing cape, the curled boots, 15 the dominant black color of the clothing, as well as the broom, are all elements that follow from the 16 witch theme. These elements are routinely expressed in a wide variety of traditional witch figures,
17 images, and costumes that are commonly employed during the Halloween season as well as in witch
18 characters such as the ‘Wicked Witch of the West’ in the Wizard of Oz and the main character in the 19 cartoon Broom Hilda”).

20 The dresses, moreover, are not similar. Meghan wears what is repeatedly described as a short,
21 brightly colored cocktail dress, which leads to her being called a prostitute. By contrast, Darci’s dress
22 is described as a hideously ugly, frilly pink, southern belle bridesmaids dress. Beyond the general 23 concept of a woman wearing a dress, and – perhaps – the fact that both are “brightly colored,” there is 24 no similarity between the dresses.

25
26
27 ²⁰⁵For example, the cover of the 2011 comedy Bridesmaids depicts a number of women that are 28 roughly Meghan and Darci’s age, five of whom are wearing bright pink bridesmaids dresses. The concept is generic or stock, and entitled to no copyright protection.

1 (7) Conclusion Regarding the Characters

2 In sum, the only similarities between the characters in Walk of Shame and Darci's Walk of 3 Shame are abstract and generalized. To the extent any of the characters are sufficiently developed, they 4 share no articulable similarities. Thus, none has protectable similarities.

5 h. Weighing the Factors

6 The only articulable similarities between the two works are the fact that each lead character has 7 her car towed to a tow lot and engages in similar dialogue with a tow lot employee, and the fact that 8 each lead character is ultimately transported by helicopter to (or close to) her final destination. As 9 noted, although not sufficiently general to constitute scènes-à-faire, towing the lead character's car and 10 using a helicopter as a mode of transportation, if not completely foreseeable, certainly are not unique
11 choices in an outlandish comedy involving a walk of shame. Moreover, the helicopter scenes are 12 entirely different, given that Meghan's and Gordon's helicopter ride is not depicted, but merely 13 discussed. Likewise, the similar dialogue that takes place at the towing lots consumes no more than a 14 few minutes in each work. Therefore, even when the scene at the tow lot and the helicopter ride are 15 considered, the court cannot conclude that there are triable issues respecting substantial similarity. As 16 was the case in Benay and Funky Films, despite isolated similarities, the two works tell decidedly 17 different stories, and lack substantial similarity as a matter of law. See Benay, 607 F.3d at 625 ("The 18 Benays point to a number of similarities between the Screenplay and the Film. Both have identical
19 titles; both share the historically unfounded premise of an American war veteran going to Japan to help
20 the Imperial Army by training it in the methods of modern Western warfare for its fight against a 21 samurai uprising; both have protagonists who are authors of non-fiction studies on war and who have 22 flashbacks to battles in America; both include meetings with the Emperor and numerous battle scenes;
23 both are reverential toward Japanese culture; and both feature the leader of the samurai rebellion as an 24 important foil to the protagonist. Finally, in both works the American protagonist is spiritually
25 transformed by his experience in Japan. We agree with the district court that '[w]hile on cursory review, 26 these similarities may appear substantial, a closer examination of the protectable elements, including 27 plot, themes, dialogue, mood, setting, pace, characters, and sequence of events, exposes many more
28 differences than similarities between Plaintiffs' Screenplay and Defendants' film.' The most important

1 similarities involve unprotectable elements. They are shared historical facts, familiar stock scenes, and 2 characteristics that flow naturally from the works' shared basic plot premise. Stripped of these 3 unprotected elements, the works are not sufficiently similar to satisfy the extrinsic test"); Funky Films, 4 462 F.3d at 1081 ("At a very high level of generality, both works share certain plot similarities: the
5 family-run funeral home, the father's death, and the return of the 'prodigal son,' who assists his brother
6 in maintaining the family business. But '[g]eneral plot ideas are not protected by copyright law; they 7 remain forever the common property of artistic mankind.' Beyond that, '[t]he stories do not share any 8 detailed sequence of events.' The similarities recounted throughout appellants' brief rely heavily on 9 scenes à faire – not concrete renderings specific to 'The Funk Parlor' – and are, at best, coincidental.
10 Consequently, the two works are not substantially similar"); DuckHole Inc. v. NBC Universal Media
11 LLC, No. CV 12-10077 BRO (CWx), 2013 WL 5797279, *7 (C.D. Cal. Sept. 6, 2013) ("There are two 12 similar story fragments. The Court, however, agrees with Defendant that 'a Halloween costume contest
13 for pets at the clinic, and an issue about a pet eating chocolate,' do not provide a basis for substantial
14 similarity"); Gilbert v. New Line Prods., Inc., No. CV 09-02231 RGK (RZx), 2010 WL 5790628, *9
15 (C.D. Cal. Aug. 13, 2010) ("The Court recognizes that some similarities exist. For example, in both 16 screenplays, the mothers incessantly call their sons, fake illnesses to draw their sons away, bring back
17 their sons' ex-girlfriends, and hire a private investigator to search into Julia and Charlie's past. They 18 also do their sons' laundry and live in the same building as their sons. Both Julia and Charlie seek 19 advice from friends and therapists as they struggle with the mothers in law. There are also some shared 20 generic themes of family, relationships, and love, as well as a similar narrative pace. The majority of 21 the asserted similarities, however, flow from the screenplays' shared generic plot of mothers who 22 scheme to derail their sons' pending marriage to women who the mothers disapprove of. . . . Removing 23 these irrelevant similarities from the Court's consideration, the remaining similarities are insufficient 24 to overcome the differences in order to satisfy the extrinsic test.") aff'd, 490 Fed. Appx. 34 (9th Cir. Jul.
25 23, 2012).

26 i. *Metcalf v. Bochco

27 At the hearing, Shame on You argued that the Ninth Circuit's decision in Metcalf v. Bochco, 294
28 F.3d 1069, 1074 (9th Cir. 2002), required that a jury decide its copyright infringement claim. Metcalf

1 is readily distinguishable. There, summarizing the works in question, the Ninth Circuit noted:

2 “The similarities between the relevant works are striking: Both the Metcalf and Bochco
3 works are set in overburdened county hospitals in inner-city Los Angeles with mostly 4 black staffs. Both deal with issues of poverty, race relations and urban blight. The 5 works’ main characters are both young, good-looking, muscular black surgeons who 6 grew up in the neighborhood where the hospital is located. Both surgeons struggle to 7 choose between the financial benefits of private practice and the emotional rewards of 8 working in the inner city. Both are romantically involved with young professional 9 women when they arrive at the hospital, but develop strong attractions to hospital
10 administrators. Both new relationships flourish and culminate in a kiss, but are later 11 strained when the administrator observes a display of physical intimacy between the 12 main character and his original love interest. Both administrators are in their thirties, 13 were once married but are now single, without children and devoted to their careers and 14 to the hospital. In both works, the hospital’s bid for reaccreditation is vehemently 15 opposed by a Hispanic politician.” Id. at 1073-74.

16 The court held that “the similarities . . . [were] not protectable when considered individually[ 17 because] they [we]re either too generic or constitute[d] ‘scenes a faire.’” Id. at 1074. It noted, 18 “[h]owever, [that] the presence of so many generic similarities and the common patterns in which they 19 ar[o]se . . . help[ed] the Metcalfs satisfy the extrinsic test.” Id. Stated differently, it held that “[t]he 20 totality of the similarities . . . [went] beyond the necessities of the . . . theme and belie[d] any claim of 21 literary accident,” and that the “cumulative weight of the [] similarities allow[ed] the Metcalfs to survive 22 summary judgment.” Id.

23 Shame on You has never argued, nor has the court found, that there are any “striking”
24 similarities between the two works at issue in this case. Cf. 4 Melville B. Nimmer & David Nimmer, 25 NIMMER ON COPYRIGHT, § 13.02[B] (2005) (“At base, ‘striking similarity’ simply means that, in human 26 experience, it is virtually impossible that the two works could have been independently created”). “In 27 Metcalf, unlike this case, the ‘generic similarities’ were voluminous, nearly identical, and occurred in 28 the same pattern. Here, in contrast, [most] of the elements [Shame on You] points out are not similar

1 when viewed in context.” Gable v. Nat’l Broad. Co., 727 F. Supp. 2d 815, 843 44 (C.D. Cal. 2010)
2 aff’d, 438 Fed. Appx. 587 (9th Cir. June 16, 2011) (Unpub. Disp.). Shame on You has not cited “any 3 common pattern of unprotected elements in [Walk of Shame] that also appears in [Darci’s Walk of 4 Shame] in the sort of magnitude contemplated by Metcalfe.” Id. See also Satava v. Lowry, 323 F.3d 805,
5 811-12 (9th Cir. 2003) (distinguishing Metcalfe because “a combination of unprotectable elements is 6 eligible for copyright protection only if those elements are numerous enough and their selection and 7 arrangement original enough that their combination constitutes an original work of authorship”); Zella
8 v. Scripps Co., 529 F.Supp.2d 1124, 1073 (C.D. Cal. 2007) (noting that “many courts have been 9 reluctant to expand [copyright protection for a pattern of unprotected elements in literary works] beyond
10 the clear-cut case in Metcalfe,” and granting summary judgment for defendants where plaintiff “cobbled 11 together” a list of generic elements that did not form a specific pattern); Identity Arts v. Best Buy Enter.
12 Servs. Inc., No. CV 05-4656 PJH, 2007 WL 1149155, *28 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 18, 2007) (declining to apply
13 Metcalfe where works shared only a few “striking similarities,” and, broadly speaking, a similar sequence 14 of events because “the cumulative weight” of the alleged similarities paled in comparison to that in 15 Metcalfe), aff’d, 320 Fed. Appx. 772 (9th Cir. Apr. 1, 2009) (Unpub. Disp.); Flynn v. Surnow, No. CV 16 02-9058-JFW (PLAx), 2003 WL 23411877, *9 (C.D. Cal. Dec. 9, 2003) (rejecting a comparison to 17 Metcalfe where the similarities between works were “randomly scattered throughout the works and ha[d] 18 no concrete pattern . . . in common”).

19 Metcalfe is therefore distinguishable, and does not save Shame on You’s copyright claim from 20 dismissal. See Funky Films, 462 F.3d at 1081 (“No amount of proof of access will suffice to show
21 copying if there are no similarities,’ and, in this case, additional discovery would not change the fact that 22 the two works lack any concrete or articulable similarities,” quoting Krofft, 562 F.2d at 1172); Williams, 23 84 F.3d at 590 (“[R]andom similarities scattered throughout the works . . . cannot [by themselves] 24 support a finding of substantial similarity”).

25 The court therefore concludes that there is no substantial similarity between plaintiff’s and 26 defendants’ works as a matter of law, and that Garner’s and Broken Road’s motion to dismiss Shame
27 on You’s copyright infringement claim must be granted. The court therefore dismisses Shame on You’s 28 copyright claims against Garner and Broken Road with prejudice. See California ex rel. California

1 Department of Toxic Substances Control v. Neville Chemical Co., 358 F.3d 661, 673 (9th Cir. 2004)
2 (“[D]enial of leave to amend is appropriate if the amendment would be futile,” citing Foman v. Davis, 3 371 U.S. 178, 182 (1962)).

4 3. Whether the Court Should Exercise Supplemental Jurisdiction Over Shame
5 on You’s Implied-in-Fact Contract Claim

6 Shame on You’s copyright infringement claim provides the sole basis for federal subject matter
7 jurisdiction in this case, given that both Shame on You and several of the defendants are allegedly 8 California citizens.²⁰⁶ Section 1367(c)(2) provides that a district court may decline supplemental 9 jurisdiction where the state court claim substantially predominates over the federal claim. See 28 U.S.C.
10 § 1367(c)(2) (“The district courts may decline to exercise supplemental jurisdiction over a [state-law]
11 claim [if] . . . the claim substantially predominates over the claim or claims over which the district court 12 has original jurisdiction”). Dismissal under this section is proper where “a state claim constitutes the 13 real body of a case, to which the federal claim is only an appendage.” United Mine Workers of America
14 v. Gibbs, 383 U.S. 715, 727 (1966). Thus, “where permitting litigation of all claims in the district court 15 can accurately be described as allowing a federal tail to wag what is in substance a state dog,” district
16 courts should decline to exercise supplemental jurisdiction. Borough of W. Mifflin v. Lancaster, 45 F.3d
17 780, 789 (3d Cir. 1995). Here, the court has concluded that the federal copyright claim fails as a matter
18 of law. The implied-in-fact contract claim turns on an altogether different standard. See Benay, 607
19 F.3d at 361 (“[B]ecause the claim is based in contract, unauthorized use can be shown by substantially 20 similar elements that are not protected under copyright law”); id. at 632 (affirming summary judgment 21 on federal copyright claim for lack of substantial similarity; reversing grant of summary judgment on 22 implied in fact contract claim because scenes-a-faire and other stock elements can constitute substantial 23 similarities for purposes of implied-in-fact contract claim). The parties, moreover, have not 24 substantially litigated the merits of the implied-in-fact contract claim, devoting a total of no more than 25 handful of pages of briefing to it. Because the federal copyright claim fails as a matter of law, and is 26 based on a different legal standard, principles of comity council strongly against maintaining the

27
28 ²⁰⁶FAC, ¶¶ 3-12(b).

1 implied-in-fact contract claim. See Gibbs, 383 U.S. at 726 (“Needless decisions of state law should be
2 avoided both as a matter of comity and to promote justice between the parties, by procuring for them
3 a surer-footed reading of applicable law”). The court therefore declines to exercise supplemental
4 jurisdiction of the implied-in-fact contract claim under § 1367(c)(2). Garner’s and Broken Road’s 5 motion to dismiss is therefore granted in full.

6 J. Whether the Remaining Defendants Are Entitled to Judgment on the Pleadings

7 Defendants assert that they are entitled to judgment on the pleadings for the same reasons Garner
8 and Broken Road were entitled to dismissal of the claims against them with prejudice, i.e., that the two 9 works lack substantial similarity in protectable expression as a matter of law. The court’s conclusion
10 that the two works are not substantially similar applies equally to the remaining defendants. Moreover,
11 given that the court has dismissed the claims against Garner and Broken Road with prejudice, all
12 remaining parties in the action have filed answers, such that the pleadings are closed. Doe, 419 F.3d
13 at 1061 (“the pleadings are closed for the purposes of Rule 12(c) once a complaint and answer have been 14 filed, assuming, as is the case here, that no counterclaim or cross-claim is made”). Accordingly, the 15 court grants defendants’ motion for judgment on the pleadings on Shame on You’s copyright claim.

16
17 III. CONCLUSION

18 For the reasons stated, Garner’s and Broken Road’s motion to dismiss is granted as to the 19 copyright infringement claim with prejudice. The court declines to exercise supplemental jurisdiction
20 over Shame on You’s implied-in-fact contract claim, and dismisses that claim without prejudice to its 21 refiling in state court. The remaining defendants’ motion for judgment on the pleadings on the federal 22 copyright claim is also granted with prejudice. See Neville Chemical Co., 358 F.3d at 673 (“[D]enial 23 of leave to amend is appropriate if the amendment would be futile,” citing Foman, 371 U.S. at 182).
24 Because there are no remaining claims, the court denies Garner’s and Broken Road’s motion to continue 25 the case management dates as moot.

26
27 DATED: August 14, 2015

28
MARGARET M. MORROW
UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE